Art Gallery Owners To Look For New Site

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

An art gallery, for all its charm, apparently like poems, isn't as lovely as a tree or even another family living nearby.

So Donald S. Lewis, senior and junior, owners of Auslew Gallery at 5548 Sajo Farm Road in the Buy-side Borough, have decided to call it quits and look for a friendlier climate for their gallery.

But first they have to find a buyer for the 17,000 square-foot mansion on the old Sam Jones Estate.

Their real estate agent, James H. Brunt, said that the owners hope to sell the house, "hopefully to a large family," and walk away. But the Lewises need some time and a little sign to show people where the gallery is. This way the prospective buyers won't be knocking on the door of next door neighbor Mary Ruth Scott, who told City Council last week that some of the gallery's clientele have even walked into her living room.

Scott claimed that the gallery violated its use permit and people come at all hours of day and night looking for the Lewises. She said that one of the neighbors was sued by one of the security guards and another detained by police. She said that the gallery was incompatible with the residential zoning.

Councilman Louis R. Jones said that back in 1986 when the conditional use permit for the gallery was awarded to the Lewises, he did not think the use was suitable. A business at the end of a dirt road in a residential area is not compatible, he said. The experiment hasn't worked out, he said, but he thought the city should give the Lewises time to relocate.

The owners of the Auslew Gallery, on Sajo Farm Road, will look for a friendlier climate for their gallery.

His motion to extend the use permit for another year (the Lewises had asked for two) with all the same conditions and to allow them to have a directional sign measuring five inches by 18 inches was approved.

Brunt said that the Lewises thought they were good neighbors, but apparently they were not.

The sign neighbors complained about a condition which says no signs on the property, he said, and was put up the Virginia Opera Association which used the gallery for a promotion in April and May. Reports from neighbors that 20 to 60 cars are parked at the gallery were not true, he said, except possibly during the promotion. The condition limits daily visitors to eight. Brunt said that it would be nice "if we could have eight visitors."

He concluded that "you can't run a business when you know somebody can kick you out and said that the owners decided it was time to retreat.

"If we sell the house, we will walk away."

Scott said that although the permit had expired the Lewises added a second floor gallery and that allowing them to keep the gallery was "like rewarding them for breaking your rules," she said.

The extension of the permit was granted by a vote of 10-1 with Mayor Meyera Oberndorf dissenting.

Museum Specialist Anne D. Fleder Has Traveled Far And Wide Volunteering

Now, Arts Center And Others Gain From Her Efforts

By Greg Goldfarb
Managing Editor

There's volunteers.

And then there's volunteers.

And while practically all volunteers are very, very, very important to the organizations they serve, some of them may carry an extra measure of effectiveness and efficiency because of their backgrounds.

Such as the case for Anne D. Fleder, a museum specialist and Virginia Beach Center for the Arts volunteer.

With a bachelor's degree in fine arts from the University of Virginia, and having completed a Christie's Fine Arts Program in London, and a summer art program at Yale University in New Haven, Conn., that constitutes just the beginning of Fleder's credentials.

Fleder has also helped The Institute of Contemporary Art, and Skinner, Inc., Auctioneers, both in Boston; the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.; the IBM Gallery of Science and Art, in New York; and the Abby Aldrich Rockefeller Folk Art Center, in Williamsburg.

With that type of resume, she seems pretty well suited to help Virginia Beach's arts center, while at the same pursuing a full-time position in her field.

"I feel I'm qualified to do good work and want to help an arts organization," said Fleder, a North End resident and wife of Lawrence Fleder, a Norfolk attorney who is also active in real estate management.

She said working in Virginia Beach has been a real "eye-opener," as she works about 10 hours a week helping the center "get the word out about the center and its programming."

The local Virginia Beach community has not embraced the center with open arms "as much as it could," Fleder said, adding that the center's staff is working very hard to erase the "elitist reputation" with which the facility, located at the expressway's eastern terminus on Parks Avenue at the Ocean-front, has unfairly been saddled.

"What I'd like to see with the arts community arewide," Fleder, 28, said, "is more of a collaborative effort. Maybe because of (arts) funding problems, people will look at each other." Notably, she would like to see more interaction between such local arts institutions, such as the Chrysler Museum in Norfolk, arts center and art galleries. In fact, to help draw more visitors to the Beach's arts center, it recently eliminated its admission fee.

Regarding the public's indulgence, or lack thereof, of controversial art, such as the controversial photography exhibits of Robert Mapplethorpe and Andres Serrano, whose works have contained sexual and religious themes and overtones that some people found offensive, Fleder said that artists should be free to, in this case, photograph what they like and not have to feel threatened by governmental censorship.

"What I'd like to see with the arts community arewide, is more of a collaborative effort."

Anne Fleder, volunteer, Virginia Beach Center for the Arts

"I can understand people being turned off or being offended by some of their pictures," she said, "but they don't have to see them."

Fleder, a Norfolk native, is the daughter of Arthur and Renee Fleder, who still reside in that city. Her father is a mattress manufacturer and her mother is active in the Chrysler's decent program.

The 1981 Norfolk Academy graduate has two brothers, Jamie, 32, and Richard, 34, who are both married and in business with their father. Fleder obtained her art history degree at U.Va. in 1985, after which she went to London enrolled in Christie's Art History Connoisseurship Program, wanting to become competent in authenticating and cataloging European and American art objects from the 1400s to the present. She visited British art galleries, museum and auction houses, studying elements of decorative fine arts "to have an understanding of art history as it developed."

"To be exposed to a European city like London gave me a better perspective of the European way of thinking," she continued.

At the Rockefeller Folk Art Center she volunteered as a winter intern in 1984, reporting to the curator, and helped prepare new exhibits and researched possible acquisitions. From 1986 to '87, she was a gallery guide at the IBM Gallery of Science and Art, where she voluntarily researched and lectured on a wide variety of exhibitions, including folk art, bent wood and metal furniture, and Mexican textiles; she also coordinated educational programs for school groups and edited brochure copy and wall text for exhibitions.

As a volunteer program specialist at the National Gallery of Art, from 1987 to 1989, her duties included coordinating and disseminating information to the press and processing general inquiries. She also produced the gallery's 50,000-circulation calendar of events, organized press events, including previews, conferences, receptions and breakfasts; supervised network and local affiliate film crews and acted as on-site coordinator for film projects, ranging from news stories to full-length feature films; created documents for press kits and oversaw their distribution; and hired and supervised intern staff.

In 1990, from January to July, she was a part-time auction assistant for Skinner, Inc., and assisted in bi-weekly auctions at what is said to be New England's "largest auction house."

She served as curatorial assistant at The Institute of Contemporary Art from July, 1990 until about January, 1991, when she moved to Virginia Beach. There she researched artists to determine whether or not to give them loans, contacted artists and made slide presentations of their works for juried exhibitions, investi-

Billboards Win A Round From City Council

Some People Think Battle Isn't Over

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Billboards won a round recently when City Council by a vote of 8-3 reaffirmed a decision made in an executive session to drop a lawsuit in Circuit Court contesting a variance granted by the Board of Zoning Appeals.

Council took action last week after spokespersons for thousands of citizens and numerous organizations appealed to council for more than two-and-a-half hours to reinstate a lawsuit against the Board of Zoning Appeals. The board had granted a variance to Edwin B. Lindsey Jr., allowing him to construct a building on property which currently contains a billboard.

The City Code (Section 216) prohibits the erection of a billboard on improved property. The Board of Zoning Appeals granted Lindsey's appeal from this section of the Code on Sept. 21, 1988, permitting a billboard located at Shore Drive and Vista Circle to remain when the property on which it is located is improved.

Acting on behalf of the zoning administrator, Patrick A. Janezek, the city attorney appealed the decision of the board in Circuit Court.

On May 17, after the executive session when the matter was brought up, legal proceedings in the case were dropped.

The resolution, requested by Councilwoman Reba McClanan would have reinstated the suit.

Voting for the resolution were McClanan, Mayor Meyera Oberndorf and Councilwoman Nancy Parker. Oberndorf pointed out that she was absent from the council meeting on May 17 when the behind-closed-doors decision was made.

William Macali, the expert in the city attorney's office on permits and inspections, said that he knew of no one who had ever been allowed to have a billboard on property after it was improved, except for one instance where the building and the billboard were in existence before the city's billboard ordinance.

McClanan said that the city has a number of billboards that "we have assumed will be moved; now we're hearing they have vested rights." She asked Macali to make it clear that the city has an ordinance to support its actions.

When the owner of a property submits a site plan, he said, the Department of Permits and Inspections will not approve the site plan if a billboard is located on the property. In anticipation of the procedure, attorney Wayne McLeskey went to the BZA for a variance. The city attorney's office, representing the zoning administrator, asked the BZA to deny the variance. Macali said that it was not unusual for a zoning administrator to ask for an appeal.

Macali said that no one has ever

Arts and Humanities Commission Accepting Applications Through Oct.

The Virginia Beach Arts and Humanities Commission is currently accepting grant applications for the funding of performances/projects that will occur between July 1, 1992 and June 30, 1993. Application deadline is Oct. 15 at 5 p.m.

Funding is limited to groups which qualify as not-for-profit, tax exempt arts and humanities organizations. Organizations may be based in neighboring cities but must provide programming and/or services to benefit Virginia Beach citizens.

For the 1991-92 fiscal year, $291,358 was awarded to regional arts and humanities groups.

For further information or to request an application form, contact Glenn Payne at the following address or call 437-4949.

The address is: Glenn Payne, Virginia Beach Arts and Humanities Commission, 717 General Booth Boulevard, Virginia Beach, VA 23451.

Dog Tatto Clinic Set For VWC

The Great Dane Club of Tidewater will hold a dog tattoo clinic on Sunday, Sept. 15 from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Virginia Wesleyan College. There will be a tattoo charge of $10 per dog.

The clinic is held concurrently with a Virginia Beach Kennel Club AKC sanctioned match.

The dog is tattooed with a number of the owner's choice, usually his Social Security number and the number is recorded. Dog pounds and laboratories are usually trained to look for the tattoo and locate the owner before the dog is used for experimental purposes or euthanized.

For information call 427-6555 or 464-0168.

Lynnhaven Business Association Meets

The Lynnhaven Business Association will hold its next general meeting on Tuesday, Sept. 17 at noon at Tandon's Pine Tree Inn, 2932 Virginia Beach Boulevard.

Senator Moody "Sonny" Stallings, a democrat, and Kenneth R. Stille, a republican, who are both senatorial candidates for the 8th District, will speak and then the floor will be open to questions.

The cost of this luncheon will be $11 per person in advance and $12 per person at the door.

R.S.V.P. by Sept. 7. Contact Sarah Goodrich at 340-9340 or Donna Hobbs at 463-3434 for reservations.

It's Labor Day Monday, 1991

Sitting on one of those Green Brothers "Lister Teak" boardwalk benches, made in "Hailsham • East Sussex • England." Not overly comfortable, but certainly durable and weather-resistant.

It's about 6:30 p.m. The wind is up. Surf is choppy. Been like this all weekend, thus no offshore power boat races this year. Try again next year? Surfers are slashing in the water. Rollerbladers whiz by. Tourists with cameras and babies are strolling around. And even though those of us in the newspaper business always have to work the Monday holidays, I'm not complaining. It feels good out here after a long day at work. It's beautiful - clean, fresh, healthy. Crashing waves, ocean breezes, oscillating sea, expansive blue sky streaked with blue and gray clouds. Glad to be alive, even if I do have my dark moments, at times. Particularly like watching the gulls dance in the air.

Private Revolution

By Greg Goldfarb, Virginia Beach Sun writer and columnist

WARNING: This commentary is written by a normal dude for who lives alone. DO NOT RE-AD THIS as you take life, words, opinions, yourself or the writer too seriously.

My friend who was "engaged" to the girl in Utah left Saturday morning. He sold most of his furniture, his boat, and he already regrets it. "I should have just put it in storage," he says now. "In case things don't work out."

He made me take a box of kitchen utensils, including long and short knives, which I really didn't need, but he didn't want to throw away or take with him. He also gave me a brown, square, fake marble coffee table, with mirrors cut into the top and sides, which I also didn't want, but one he apparently couldn't unload on anyone else. I told him that if and when he comes back home, (and that may be likely, because he says his girl has sounded over the telephone lately that she's not as keen as she once was about him coming to live with her, but he's going through with it anyway - their main problem may be that he's Jewish and she's a Beach dude and she's Mormon and likes to two-step), he can have back the table and the kitchenware. He also gave me his 1991 SI swimsuit calendar. Yes, he can have that back also if he wants it - there's not one picture of Cindy in it. His apprehension may be just because he hasn't seen her in a month. Whatever the case, I wish him well, whatever happens.

But I have another friend with a pleasure boat that he keeps in dry storage at Marina Shores, snuggled next to the now controversial Hopper's restaurant and bar. Or is it a bar and restaurant?

So, I meet him there last Saturday afternoon and he and I and another guy go into the bay for a few hours, pulling up after awhile at a big outdoor party, with a band performing on Chick's Beach. Boats, wet bikes and water skis were parked everywhere on the beach and in the water. We anchored a little offshore and walked in. My friends knew the people having the party - I had met one of the hosts a couple of times, but didn't know many other people. One girl, who said she was a Virginia Beach Sun Sunshine Girl from 10 years, came up and said she recognized me and asked if I recognized her. I wouldn't have if she hadn't said something to me. We were soon relatively tired of that scene, although it was pleasant and fun, but it was getting near dinner time and we decided to head back to the marina.

But what is this fight between the owners, Marina Shores' Gale Levine and Hoppers' Norman Cohn, all about, anyway? . . . They both must have had too many gelatin shooters before they signed the contract.

Going back in, I began thinking about the squabble/court battle between the Marina Shores Marina and Yacht Club owner and Hopper's owner. Sure, I've been to Hopper's a few times at night and never really saw any problems. As we were preparing to dock, I began to think again about the complaints that the owner of the yacht club, of which my friend's a member, had, which included people urinating and having sex in the public parking lot, vomiting on club members' boats without permission, and passing out on nearby swinging benches.

Well, after we landed, I went to the restroom in the yacht club, or was it Hopper's, I'm not sure, and walked to my car in the parking lot to brush my matted, bay-soaked hair. And as I was sitting there in my car, the strangest feeling came over me. It was kind of an out-of-body sensation and I felt like I couldn't control myself. Next thing I know, I relieved myself beside my car, vomited on the Mercedes beside me, cleaned out my car and threw the trash in the parking lot, began looking for the hottest babe around with whom to have sex in my back seat, and then went off to the nearest swing to fall asleep.

Just kidding. I didn't have that strange feeling or do any of those things. But what is this fight between the owners, Marina Shores' Gale Levine and Hopper's Norman Cohn, all about, anyway? Oh, what a surprise. It's really over money. How did they reach their stupid agreement anyway? They both must have had too many gelatin shooters before they signed the contract. I don't really care because to me, Hopper's was just another place to go, sometimes. The yacht club, however, is another story. It's pretty nice.

One place that I did visit for the first time last Sunday afternoon, however, that did intrigue me was the Winner's sports bar near Newtown Road and Wesleyan Drive. There, I was with four other guys that I have known for a long time and with whom for years I have socialized, boated, water skied, wet biked, fished and played basketball.

This place is a rather large two-story sports fun house. A loud, big screen television featuring the major sports event of the day

Water: Essence Of Life

In this column, besides addressing many topics pertaining to various aspects of exercise, I will also be conveying some information regarding proper nutrition. Actually, fitness, exercise and nutrition are so closely related to a person's well-being that for me to try and separate them would be hard.

Besides some of the basic components of a well-rounded diet, such as consuming plenty of fresh fruits and vegetables, getting enough quality protein, and keeping dietary fat to a minimum, there is one nutrient that is of most vital importance - water. Next to oxygen, water is the most necessary substance for human survival. Without food we can last for two months or more. But without water, we can survive for only a few days.

Our bodies are about two-thirds water, although a woman's body contains a little less water because their percentage of body fat is a little higher and fat holds less water than lean tissue. Muscle is about 75 percent water. Obviously, water is very important to our well-being.

Wareing

By Jack Wareing, owner, Wareing's Gym, Virginia Beach

Water is needed for every bodily function. It carries food and oxygen to cells and removes waste products. It lubricates our joints and, through perspiration, keeps us cool. Our bodies simply cannot function without water.

Adequate water intake is also critical in maintaining a low body fat level. Water helps your body metabolize fat. If you are trying to lose weight and don't drink enough water, you will retain water and therefore keep your weight up. The whole fat-burning process is seriously impaired.

Inadequate water intake is a major contributor to the perpetuation of excess body fat as well as water retention. If a person does not drink enough water, a survival mechanism in the body causes it to retain as much water as possible. This results in a bloated feeling and appearance. To decrease water retention, simply drink more water.

Next time you feel struck with a sudden hunger pain, try a nice cold glass of water.

Adequate water intake is also critical in maintaining a low body fat level.

Many people try to justify their low water intake by saying they are just not thirsty. Well, thirst is an imperfect signal; actually thirst is often mistaken for hunger. Next time you feel struck with a sudden hunger pain, try a nice cold glass of water and you'll be surprised at how satisfied you'll feel. Thirst can also be acquired by drinking the recommended amount of water. Once the body has returned to a proper fluid balance, you will develop a healthy thirst for water again.

How much water should you drink? Eight eight-ounce glasses daily are recommended. So, celebrate your good health with a tall glass of sparkling water; it truly is the greatest beverage known to man!

If you have any questions or comments regarding fitness or nutrition feel free to drop me a line. I'll look forward to hearing from you and helping in anyway I can. Please write to: Jack Wareing, c/o Wareing's Gym, 700 19th Street, Va. Beach, Va., 23451.

Perspectives

The Mayor's Report

Virginia Beach Mayor
The Honorable
Meyera Oberdorf

During fiscal year '91 (July 1990 to June 1991) the city's roadway construction program continued to show the excellent progress that began in 1986 when the city identified a serious backlog of needed roadway projects and the voters of the city passed a $40-Million referendum for seven roadway projects.

In 1987, City Council approved the use of an $8-million road bond authority to fund an additional three roadway projects. The city proceeded with these ten projects in addition to those projects funded through the annual appropriations in the Capital Improvement Program (CIP) and to those highway projects funded and administered by the Virginia Department of Transportation (VDOT).

The city's aggressive roadway construction program has made a significant reduction in the previous backlog; and, since 1986, 42 CIP roadway projects have been completed.

Every year the City Council approves a five-year CIP for the city. The CIP identifies the capital projects that will be active within the upcoming five years and also identifies the projects that will be active in the next five years (years 6 through 10) that are not funded in the first five-year period. Since 1986, the roadways section of the CIP has included projects located throughout the city, with significant effort to improve several key transportation corridors in the city. These include such main corridors as the Indian River Road/Ferrell Parkway/Princess Anne Road corridor and the Lynnhaven Parkway corridor, both crucial to the east-west movement through the Kempsville Borough; the Independence Boulevard corridor, running north-south from the Pembroke area to Salem Road; and the Dam Neck Road/General Booth Boulevard corridor in the eastern part of the city.

Roadways Construction Program

In the CIP for FY '91 through '95 there are 62 active roadway projects and an additional 24 roadway projects identified for FY '96 through 2000. The program cost for these 86 roadway projects is approximately $450 million over the 10-year period.

During FY '91, the city completed, or substantially completed, nine roadway projects, with an aggregate project cost of $34 million. Gracetown Area Street and Newsome Farms Area Street Improvement projects were completed, improving the streets and drainage in two target neighborhoods. Independence Boulevard Phase IIA-2 is a new four-lane highway from Princess Anne Road to Salem Road, which, along with phases IIA and IIA-1, completed the four-lane divided highway from Holland Road to Salem Road. Indian Lakes Boulevard Phase IIA and Indian River Road Phase IV projects both widened existing two-lane roads to four lanes.

Ferrell Parkway Phase IB (currently under construction, scheduled for completion in September 1991), Lynnhaven Parkway phases V and VII (both completed in FY '90) and Princess Anne Road Phase III (a VDOT project currently under construction) will improve the east-west traffic movement across the city. Northampton Boulevard phases I, II, and IIA, widened existing Northampton Boulevard to a minimum of six lanes from the Norfolk city line to Shore Drive. The Princess Anne Road/Seaboard Road intersection project improved the capacity of one of the more congested intersections on Princess Anne Road in the southern part of the city.

Several key roadway projects are currently under construction. Virginia Beach Boulevard Phase III, a VDOT project, will complete the eight-lane widening of Virginia Beach Boulevard from the Norfolk city line east to Great Neck Road. Dam Neck Road phases I and II will provide four lanes from Holland Road east to the Dam Neck Naval Base (phase II is a VDOT project). Independence Boulevard phase III increases this major arterial from four lanes to an eight-lane project from Oceana Boulevard north to Croatan. Princess Anne Road phase III, which is being built in two sections, will complete the eight-lane widening of this major highway from Salem Road to Landstown Road. The Pungo Ferry Road Bridge will provide the city with a permanent fixed-span crossing of the Intercoastal Waterway between the Pungo and Blackwater Boroughs.

During FY '91, the city completed, or substantially completed, nine roadway projects, with an aggregate project cost of $34 million.

The city is proceeding with the design of other roadway projects; however, due to the current economic conditions, the city is evaluating its financial situation before continuing with the aggressive roadway program at the current pace. Depending on the outcome of the financial evaluation, the city is preparing to proceed during this new fiscal year with the construction of Centerville Turnpike phase IA and Indian River Road phase V; South Plaza Trail, Mill Dam and West Neck bridge replacements; Rosemont Road phase IV; Landstown Road and London Bridge Road phase I (VDOT projects); and the first segment of Ferrell Parkway phase V.

The city is also continuing the Resort Streetscape Improvements project, which is rebuilding Atlantic Avenue, connector parks to the boardwalk and several side streets in the resort area. In FY '91, the city completed section II of the project from 15th to 20th Streets. Section III of the project, from 10th to 15th Streets, will be completed in FY '92. This multi-year commitment by the city has received an unprecedented volume of favorable comments from the public.

The VBEA Report

By Cheryl L. Tokac,
President of the Virginia

Hard won salary progress during the 1980's will have eroded if the School Board fails to grant salary increases to teachers and other school employees in January.

In 1988, the average teacher salary was less than $300 from the national average teacher salary. But unless there is a January salary increase, the Virginia Beach average teacher is projected to fall $1,900 behind the national average. Once again, Virginia Beach will be paying above average teachers below average salaries.

The full ramifications of no salary increase will be brought home when take home pay decreases for employees who have family health insurance. A teacher with BC/BS family coverage will take home $12.18 a paycheck less next January. All employees will suffer unless the School Board increases the employer contribution by $15 a month, as the City Council recently did for its workers.

The School Board originally agreed last spring to provide employees a mid-year raise. However, when City Manager Aubrey Watts cut $2 million from the schools' budget, the board dropped its salary commitment like a hot potato. Intense pressure on City Council failed to restore cut funds. At the budget vote, while Councilman James Brazier held out for even more cuts to the School Board budget, "pro-education" City Council members pledged to look at the revenue picture in the fall. The picture is not rosy, but the money is there.

Funds are available to grant all school and city workers a 3 to 5 percent increase this January. The school system turned $6 million in excess revenue and unexpended funds over to the city on July 1. Also, impact aid funds budgeted for this school year are at least $1.5 million below what will be received.

It is time to ask the Virginia Beach community if it wants Virginia Beach teachers to fall seriously behind the national average. The answer will come back loud and clear. The citizens of Virginia Beach want high quality schools and they want their teachers to be paid above the average.

With the opening of school this week, several of my friends, who also happen to be former teachers, were talking about the lack of respect shown by many young people today. One cited the uncouth behavior of a certain tennis star who insulted a line judge and threw a temper tantrum, yet was not himself thrown out of the tournament. We agreed that such a "champion" sets a bad example for our youth.

Another mentioned seeing similar rude behavior in other sports on television. We concluded that the lack of civility today probably can be traced to the deterioration of the family unit as we knew it. With some smugness, we oldsters added another possibility. Perhaps teachers today are not training their students, as we did, to show respect for authority and for each other.

We were wrong in the case of at least one present day teacher. I met Lorna Clark in Guam in the 1960s when her husband served as aide to the commander, Naval Forces Marianas, and my husband was the staff legal officer. She is considerably younger than I and currently teaches Social Studies to 8th- and 9th-graders at Lynnhaven Junior.

When I told her of my concern, she readily admitted that "Until the family structure is back intact, we'll continue to have problems." But her efforts to train young people in proper etiquette should certainly earn her the title of "Miss Manners of the Virginia Beach School System." Those who pass through her classroom will know what it means to be a lady and a gentleman.

Lorna explains that early in each school year, she tells the boys and girls in her classes that they have a choice. They may answer her in one of two ways during their training. "Yes Mam," "No, Mam," or "Yes, Mrs. Clark" and "No, Mrs. Clark." During their class period, they must use forms of politeness such as: "May I be excused, Mrs. Clark?"

They will be expected to show courtesy to their fellow students as well. That means respecting each other's opinions, work product and possessions. Sometimes, she asks for constructive criticism of presentations. The young people are reminded that they are helping each other learn, so their comments must always be positive and kind.

Bulls/Bullets game at Cap Center in D.C. "Hello, Mr. Novak, it's a pleasure to see you," I said as I approached. He smiled, graciously shook my hand and said, "thank you." He was exiting the arena, I think. He's rather short, but looks exactly like he does on TV. It made my night. He's a pretty good journalist. I had seen Michael Jordan play several times before. I had never seen him. It was almost like the night I shook NBA legend Jerry West's hand several years ago at the Dean Dome in Chapel Hill. The heels were playing the Yellow Jackets.

Anyway, Novak got Wilder to admit that yes, Robb's political "star might have dimmed a bit" in recent months. But Wilder went out of his way to say that he should not be blamed for not "sweeping" the taping incident "under the carpet." "I have done nothing to him," Wilder proudly boasted. After the interview, when Roland Evans and Novak were talking to each other and analyzing the interviewee's remarks, Evans called Wilder a couple something, a doll, I think, a choir boy, a rogue, but also, though and shrewd. Wilder said he'll definitely announce by Sept. 15 whether or not he'll seek the Democratic nomination for president.

Robb and Tai

This Friday, Robb's old sweetheart Tai Collins is expected to be at Norfolk's Waterside signing, presumably, copies of the newest Playboy, containing her pictures and comments. Several of my friends want to accompany me, if I go, to check her out nowadays. With all the people around here who know and like Tai, she could probably have her own fan club. Yeah, I'll probably go. More on her, her words and pics next week. Wonder if she'll be at Billy Franklin's bash this Friday night. I will.

Evans, Novak and Wilder

Also this past weekend, Governor L. Douglas Wilder was on PBS, which made headlines written around his assertion that Saddam Hussein should have been killed, a statement he later clarified last Saturday on the "Evans and Novak" show. He said he knew, as did everyone, that assassination was illegal and that he does not advocate it. Bob Novak pressed him about his fight with U.S. Senator Charles Robb. By the way, I shook Novak's hand several years ago after seeing him between quarters at a

Good Citizens, Good Manners

Unquestionably, students need direction and guidance. Today, both parents often work or are single parents. They do not have a lot of time to spend with their children, and after work, they are usually tired. Teachers have to pick up the slack in teaching good citizenship and good manners.

Unquestionably, students need direction and guidance. Today, both parents often work or are single parents. They do not have a lot of time to spend with their children.

In Lorna's case, it must be working. She reports that, to her delight, some former students return for visits and refer to her as "Mrs. Yes Mam." They have not forgotten the important lesson she taught them.

Now you may wonder what connection good manners have to our Constitution. Under the great document, Americans are given opportunities to use their natural talents, but they are also given the responsibility of allowing others to use theirs. After all, the Bill of Rights, the 20th anniversary of which we celebrate this year, is a kind of legal counterpart of the Golden Rule.

Proper etiquette shares with the law the momentous and complex task of regulating social behavior for the common good, including inhibiting patently rude or offensive acts. As a child once said of the Constitution - it keeps people from bumping into each other's rights!

Thank goodness this Labor Day came and went peacefully. Too bad, Landmark, you won't sell as many newspapers as two years ago at this time.

Well, time to go. Running out of writing light and I need to go home and type this messy longhand up. See, I do care about my typewriters.

MTV and Cindy

Oh, and by the way, in this week's MTV music video awards show, there's only one category in which I'm interested: best male video of the year. Forget Chris Isaak, forget Gerrardo, the winner should be George Michael for "Freedom," which has no shots of him in it, but some nice footage of Cindy.

organic sounds of orchestral instruments and piano.

"We're using some fairly new keyboards that let you create your own sounds. We try to stay away from the factory presets, and sample our own."

It sounds to me like they are on the right track. They have a much bigger sound than what you would expect from a trio, due largely in part, to the synthesizers being programmed and played by Rivera, and combined with Hancock's solid drumming and Sean's eclectic guitar work, they have come up with a package well worth further examination.

These guys are performing Wednesday night, Sept. 4 at Outer Limits in Virginia Beach on Newtown Road, and it will be well worth a trip to catch this act. Don't miss Tinderbox!

gone before the BZA for this type of variance. The BZA was created in the early part of the century, he said, in recognition of the fact that no code cover every situation. A variance, he said, is an escape valve for extraordinary circumstances which were not foreseeable. If council can change the ordinance, a variance is not proper, he said.

Although the attorney for Lindsey emphasized the unconstitutionality of the section because it constitutes a taking of vested right without compensation, Macali said that the constitutionality of the ordinance is not in question. The issue lies in one statute and variances are based on hardship and special conditions.

Councilman James W. Brazier Jr., who is credited with leading the effort to drop the suit, said that since he was a "leading proponent" he wanted to express his position. He said that Lindsey had been a friend of his for 20 years and that he had used the billboard in question, gratis, for a political sign (he paid for the sign itself), but that no one had told him that when someone contributed to a political campaign he, the candidate, should say, "by the way, if you have a problem in the city I can't help you" because the person contributed to his campaign. "I don't think a person sitting up here has told you that."

He said that he had never had trouble separating his duty from friendship. He said that the issue had been debated in executive session and that his position was that it was unconstitutional. In that executive session, there was a clear indication (voting is not permitted in executive sessions), he said, that the city was going to drop that case. He said that he did not agree that the action was not in the best interest of the city and it "doesn't make a bit of difference whether Lindsey is a friend or not."

Maurice Jackson, president of the Council of Civic Organizations, said that the city's not standing by its own ordinance sends a bad signal out to the community. He said that every individual in Virginia Beach interested in the beautification of the city backed the resolution.

Robert Gaines, chairman of the Southeastern Association for the Virginia Environment, said that all the values established by the prior council are being removed by the current council.

Tim Barrow, chairman of the Resort Area Advisory Commission, said that he was "amazed by City Council's failure to challenge the Board of Zoning Appeals' decision." He said that it was a "direct challenge to the legitimate authority of City Council." The board, an unelected body (it is appointed by the presiding Circuit Court judge), is substituting its opinions for the opinions of council, an elected body, he said.

The specific billboard in question, Tim Barrow said, is a visual affront to every citizen and visitor in the city, and located at one of the city's choicest locations.

He said that the decision abrogated the council's authority. If, however, he said, council, feels that its former policy is not correct, it has the authority to change it.

The specific billboard in question, he said, is a visual affront to every citizen and visitor in the city and is located at one of the choicest locations in the city, near the Bay and the Lynnhaven River. To have the visual eyesore continue there, he said, diminishes the strides made by the city over the past five years.

Lindsey constructed the billboard in 1971 under a city conditional use permit. Jerry Mack Douglas Jr., Lindsey's attorney, said that Section 216 strictly enforced constitutes a taking of a vested right without compensation.

Speakers pointed out that Lindsey was not being deprived use of the property, just in making a choice between the billboard and improvements. Les Fenlon, chairman of the Great Neck Association of Civic Leagues, said that never before have the city's civic associations united so strongly to preserve the billboard ordinance.

He said that the property would be an ideal location for a satellite visitors' center for tourists coming off the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel, and some may say, he said, that billboards will inform the visitors, "but not at the sacrifice of the landscape."

P.H. "Pat" Bridges, chairman of the subcommittee of the Virginia Beach Tomorrow Committee and on the Committee on the city's Appearance Task Force, said, "we thought we were over the hump. If the variance allows the man to do what the ordinance says he can't."

F. Terry Elliott said that Shore Drive is one of the major arteries that brings tourists into the city. What they see is a 40-foot high billboard. He said that allowing the billboard to stand sets a precedent. "Favoring for the few has no place in our political system," he said.

Alfonso Strazzulo, president of the Lynnhaven Colony Civic League, said that the community actively supports new businesses but has a problem with billboards. He said that six are in the immediate neighborhood - all on unimproved property. When the new billboard ordinance was adopted, he said, the residents "became to have some hope... that someday when the property was developed those billboards would come down." As for claims that the billboard was grandfathered, Strazzulo said, if the billboard was grandfathered why would the applicant spend money on an attorney?

"I don't think this battle is going to end here tonight," Strazzulo said. "I think billboards are a thing of the past... They're dinosaurs... I'm ready to boycott anybody who advertises on billboards." Strazzulo received applause from the more than 50 persons who showed up in support as did most of the other speakers.

Rae LeSesne, president of the Citizens Action Coalition, said that the precedent is extremely dangerous. He cited the numerous volunteers who work to improve the city and said that "if council doesn't care about the appearance of the city why should anyone else?" Leo Harper, representing Chesapeake Colony, asked that the issue be resolved in court "and see that we have a viable ordinance."

Douglas Davis, attorney representing Lindsey, said that "I'm ready but not when it violates private rights." Jerry Mack Douglas Jr. added that aesthetics is no argument and aesthetics is the only argument presented by the opposition.

Councilman Robert W. Clyburn said that he didn't like billboards either, but he also did not believe in taking away part of an individual's livelihood. He said that he would love to have that billboard taken down and asked whether the issue could be negotiated.

Councilman Harold Heischhofer said that people had called upset that the matter had been discussed behind closed doors. He asked City Attorney Leslie Lilley whether this procedure was proper.

Lilley replied that it was proper to discuss issues requiring legal advice in executive sessions.

Councilwoman Nancy Parker said that if council was going to make a major change in policy, it should be done in public rather than in executive session.

McClan said that she did not question the right to discuss the matter in executive session, but the decisions should be made in public. "People here feel they, too, have vested rights in the city and they are not required to present a legal background." She said that many letters have been written and many people have called and since legal points were raised the matter should be settled in court.

In June of this year, she began volunteering at the Virginia Beach Center for the Arts. But in addition to volunteering there, locally Fleder is also involved in the SPCA's pet therapy program, in which she takes puppies and kittens to nursing homes and a local psychiatric facility. She also helps to organize public television's WHRO art auction in Norfolk.

Fleder continues to work on a paid contract basis for the National Gallery, performing promotional and public relations duties, and is scheduled to go there again for two weeks in October.

Fleder said that day by day, she continues to learn from her daily experiences. She is still looking for a full-time job in her field, and hopes sometime in the future to go to graduate school. Fleder is also a family person, and plans someday to have one of her own.

Women Need To Speak Up To Get Ahead - Schroeder

Over 200 businesswomen attended a recent Central Business District Association Women's Review Luncheon, held at the Omni Virginia Beach Hotel.

Congresswoman Patricia Schroeder, D-Colo., was the featured guest speaker, and she told the group that it's time for women to be assertive and to become leaders. "Nice," she said, is a "four-letter word," and for women to get ahead, they need to speak up and challenge chauvinistic attitudes and practices.

Schroeder, as an example of such practices, said the National Institute of Health used only men for testing when researching major illnesses, until women rallied, urging representatives to support a Women's Health Equity of 22 bills, designed to stop this exclusionary process.

If women continue to be passive and "nice," she said, women will get nowhere in today's world.

The luncheon was sponsored by the CBDA and Sentara Norfolk General Hospital's Women's Health Pavilion.

The next Women's Review Luncheon will be on December 5 and the guest speaker will be Mirabella of Mirabella Publications. Anyone interested may get in touch with the association at its headquarters in Pembroke.

But Waterside General Manager Couldn't Stop It

Managing Editor

Waterside Festival Marketplace General Manager Brian Giffin said early this week that if legally possible, Tai Collins would not have been allowed in Waterside to autograph issues of Playboys which contained nude photographs of her.

"We considered stopping the event," said Giffin. "We had researched the lease earlier in the week; we were not in our rights to stop it."

The 90-minute magazine-signing event attracted a couple hundred people, Giffin said, and was sponsored by Playboys and hosted by the Waterside News Stand.

Giffin said "we maintained a very neutral position on the event," but after receiving about a dozen protest phone calls, mostly from "religious-type individuals," he considered calling the whole event off.

The fact that Collins alleged in Playboys that she had a 10-month affair with the U.S. Senator Charles S. Robb, who is married, is not what the callers found objectionable, Giffin said. Robb has denied the affair.

"Some people find nude modeling objectionable," Giffin said. "Since some people found it objectionable, it was something we would not want to be a part of."

Collins was the first Playboys model to ever have a signing session at Waterside, Giffin said, and she will probably be the last. He said the event turned out "bigger than we originally thought," and compared to similar sessions in Richmond and Washington, D.C., the Norfolk signing was the "smoothest of all the sessions."

Collins listens to an admirer.

Center For The Arts Presents Donald Saff's Works

The Virginia Beach Center for the Arts will present a retrospective exhibition of the works of Donald Saff, beginning on Sunday, Sept. 15.

"Donald Saff: Mixed Metaphors 1956-1991" includes 140 works created over the past 35 years in media, ranging from prints and drawings to paintings, collages, sculpture and environmental installations.

The exhibition, organized by the Tampa Museum of Art in 1989, will include current works which have not been exhibited previously and will remain on view through Nov. 3.

An artist, educator and advisor, Saff is known internationally for his role as artistic director of the Rauschenberg Overseas Culture Interchange (R.O.C.I.), a multi-media exhibition currently on view at the National Gallery of Art, of works by Robert Rauschenberg, a pivotal figure in twentieth-century art.

Saff is also responsible for the success of Graphicstudio, a professional collaborative print and edition sculpture workshop charged with attracting major artists to its south Florida location. The Graphicstudio Archive is now housed at the National Gallery and is the focus of an exhibition opening there in September.

Saff will be present at the opening reception of Sunday, Sept. 22 from 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. Ruth Fine, curator of modern prints and drawings at the National Gallery of Art and co-author of the exhibition catalogue, will be lecturing on Saff and his work on Tuesday, Oct. 22 at 7:30 p.m. The fully-illustrated catalogue, published by the Tampa Museum of Art, will be available in the museum shop.

The Center for the Arts is located at 22nd Street and Parks Avenue, across the Virginia Beach-Norfolk Expressway (Route 44) from the Pavilion Convention Center. Hours are Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. and Sunday from 12 noon until 4 p.m.

For more information call 425-0000.

Bars Must Stay Away From Houses

Council Imposes Restrictions On New Use Permits

By Lee Cahill
City Council Reporter

Establishments that serve alcoholic beverages will not be permitted near residential or apartment districts, under an ordinance adopted recently by City Council.

The ordinance permits the establishments only as conditional uses in B-2, B-3 and B-4 business districts, I-1 district, and RT-2 and RT-3 resort districts. The use permit process assures residents of a public hearing before the Planning Commission and City Council.

Restaurant interests asked council to deny the new ordinance or at least to defer action to allow continued study and more input from the industry.

Several residents from the

and William D. Sessions, Jr.

The amendment establishes a new land use category. Use permits will be required of eating and drinking establishments which served alcoholic beverages for on-premises consumption, and which are located within 500 feet of a residential or apartment district, or have on-site parking within 300 feet of such a district. The category replaces the one for nightclubs, bars, taverns and dance halls.

Restaurant spokesman complained that the added restrictions provide one more hurdle confronting restaurant owners. They said that only a small percentage of the establishments create problems.

Bill Dillon, president of the Virginia Beach Restaurant Association, said that only 14 percent of the mixed beverages sold in the state is sold by restaurants. The bulk comes from ABC (state-run) liquor stores and other establishments that sell beer and wine off-premises.

As far as the ABC board is con-

City Council Excerpts

Flo McDaniel, director, Virginia Beach Hotel/Motel Association:

Said her organizations opposed the ordinance until its impact on hotels could be clarified.

Michael Barrett, representing the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce:

Kal Kassir, chairman, ABC Committee of the State Restaurant Association:

Said it is unfair to condemn a whole segment of the economy for the actions of a few.

Bill Miller, president, Virginia Restaurant Association:

John Perros, owner, Sir Richard's and Giovanni's:

Submitted a list of regulatory agencies with which restaurants have to deal.

William Macali, assistant city attorney:

Said a study of state regulations was made, and the most places that have restrictive ordinances apply to the proximity of churches and schools.

Clara Thurbons, from the Princess Anne Plaza area:

Princess Anne Plaza area, however, related problems with an eating and drinking establishment in their neighborhood.

Clara Thurbon said that the residents have to sit up until 2 and 3 a.m. guarding their property from revelers from a local restaurant. They also complained about crowded parking conditions which clogs up entrances for emergency vehicles, and creates noise.

Councilwoman Reba McClanan, who proposed the ordinance, said that the Prince Anne Plaza problem is not an isolated incident, and that similar incidents occur all over the city. She said that she could fill the council chambers with people who have been affected the operation of these establishments.

Council adopted the ordinance, but only narrowly, by a vote of 6-5. Vice Mayor Robert E. Fentress had proposed an alternative - to defer the ordinance for 60 days until the matter could be studied further by the staff to address broader alcohol-related problems.

Fighting with Fentress against adopting the ordinance were Mayor Meyera Oberndorf and Councilmen John A. Baum, Harold Heischobor

Helpful Hints On Keeping Wildlife In The Outdoors

Recently, I described two types of problems involving animals in parts of a home and how to get them out. This week, I will tell you prevention methods: how to keep animals from getting into your house.

Screen cap chimney tops.

Make sure no animals or birds are in the chimney by shining a bright light down it from the roof, or remove the damper and check with a flashlight and a gloved hand. Be sure it is capped by January. Birds and squirrels can already be looking for nesting places by then.

Repair all holes in eaves or near the roof.

In our area it is best to do this from mid-October through November. By then, late-litter squirrels will most likely be out of attics and the next nesting season can begin as early as February when there are no leaves on trees for nest-building, making a snug attic a choice location. Raccoons and squirrels which occupied attics months before will often return with "the children" for shelter during the winter. Bats will hibernate in attics, so holes should be closed before they get in or these valuable insect-eaters will be unable to get out when the weather warms up, and they will die.

Prevent entry to stove vents or clothes dryer vents.

Primarily in apartment and townhouse complexes, starlings and house sparrows will nest in stove and dryer vents on a second story level. Frequently young birds fall down the stove and dryer pipe and die, or residents hear trapped babies and don't know how to get them out.

Wildlife Matters

By Sandy Krebs, Virginia Beach wildlife rehabilitator.

Removable 1-inch hardware cloth wire can be inserted to keep adult birds from building nests in vents. It should be cleaned or replaced periodically to avoid build-up of grease or lint.

Keep garage door closed, except when you are working in that area (or backing the car out).

Recently, a father called his family together in the garage one morning and said accusingly, "Who did this?" referring to a number of items which had been knocked over and not replaced. All denied guilt.

The next morning, the garage was in worse disarray, and the third, much other damage was evident. By then, the exasperated family was well aware that an unidentified occupant was eating the cat food stored in the garage, and, realizing it was an animal, they left the door open all day, but the creature did not leave and continued, inexplicably, to destroy their possessions.

Finally, the "villain" was spotted under the steps and was closely guarded until an Animal Control officer arrived to remove him to a more remote area of town. The frightened, and actually suffering, animal was an opossum which was desperate for water and tearing madly to get out, yet because opossums are very nocturnal, it was afraid to leave during the day. The easy answer to everybody's problem would have been to put the cat food into the house, place bowls of water and food just outside the garage after dark, and leave the door open (at least part-way) and the lights off until 10 or 11 p.m. Then close the door so the opossum wouldn't be able to get back inside.

Another solution would have been to set a humane trap (obtained from Animal Control) with food and water in the garage and to release the opossum in the yard. Opossums are very shy and will run away, not attack. They are notorious for getting into garages. They enter at night and will hide behind your accumulation of "I-might-need-this-someday" junk.

Wrens will nest in surprising places, and, also, like garages. They are wonderful little birds, but unless you are willing to leave them a way in and out all day long for about three weeks, it's imperative that you keep them out.

Don't cut down trees, even dead ones (unless there is the danger of one falling on a house).

Trees are homes for countless types of wildlife, and each tree taken away reduces the availability of homes for animals and increases the likelihood of their having to relocate in your house. Insects which eat the rotting wood of dead trees are food for birds, the rotten wood eventually produces toadstools, and holes in the dead and live trees provide nesting sites as well as shelter for mammals and birds.

The natural nesting place for the tiny honeybee is in tree cavities. With their beavers removed at an alarming rate, honeybees are building their hives in chimneys where homeowners, in fear and ignorance of their value, have exterminators poison them. Beekeepers attest to the severe decline of honeybees, which are directly responsible for the pollination of 30 percent of the food we eat.

Provide boxes for nesting and shelter.

Owls, all kinds of woodpeckers, bluebirds, flycatchers, titmice, chickadees, wrens, purple martins, wood ducks, bats, opossums, squirrels and raccoons are among the birds and mammals which will use boxes you can build or buy and place in a location to suit the animals' needs.

Give wildlife an alternative to living with you and a better chance at survival.

Fears Of A Frequent Traveller

This column was originally published in The Virginia Beach Sun's sister publication, The Chesapeake Post.

One of my great fears as a frequent traveller is that the stranger seated next to me on a transatlantic flight will smell like a goat. Conversely, I am always hoping for some beautiful model to sit next to me and strike up a conversation.

Over the years I have found myself next to old ladies with sinus conditions, hyperactive children, the Guinness record-holder for the most beers consumed in a single day and a great number of average people as worried about my hygiene habits as I was about theirs. As for my fantasy, the best I have ever done is a woman with a neatly trimmed mustache and one eyebrow, running from car to car.

That is until this latest trip to Germany. A strikingly handsome woman was seated next to me and was inclined to speak to mere mortals. After a few drinks and some small talk, I learned that she was single and that her tan was the same all over.

This bronzed beauty learned from me that her dark eyes and brunette hair reminded me of my late wife, recently hit by a train. She also learned that I was a brain surgeon enroute to Germany to perform a critical operation on some unnamed political leader.

This rose brightened the early portion of the trip and promised to make the trip one of my more memorable. But like a real rose, there were a few thorns. It was during dinner while we were enjoying "clear air turbulence" that I discovered that she was susceptible to air sickness. Youth and beauty are fleeting at best, but nothing will speed their departure like a full air sick bag.

By the end of the flight I had begun to fantasize about the woman with one eyebrow.

Try Variety Of Exercises; And Quit Smoking

Dear readers:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank everyone for your kind response in regard to the "Fitness Lifestyle" column.

The letters you've sent have been very interesting, and the questions asked indicate a genuine interest in improving personal health and fitness. I will periodically be printing some of your questions and hope that my answers will be of help to you.

Dear Jack:

I have a weak ankle, and I'll go for weeks without it hurting. Then, for no apparent reason, it starts bothering me. What could trigger this, since I always run about the same number of miles on the same trail? Should I stay off it when it bothers me, and for how long? I really don't want to give up on running. It means so much to me. Got any suggestions?

Wareing

Gayle Lombard-Johnson
Virginia Beach

Dear Gayle:

The particular type of injury that you are describing appears to be a very common ailment that is frequently referred to as "overuse syndrome." This is an inflammation that can occur in the joints, muscles or tendons of any active person.

Fitness Lifestyles

By Jack Wareing, owner, Wareing's Gym, Virginia Beach

When I say that this is an overuse injury I don't mean that you are exercising too much, but that you are doing the same activity too frequently. This is one of the primary reasons for the major growth in popularity of "cross-training."

Cross-training involves systematically altering and rotating your fitness-related activities. I would highly recommend you getting involved in some other cardiovascular workouts (biking, aerobics, stairclimbing machines, rowing, etc.) and while you're at it, add some weight-training for joint and bone stability.

Now keep in mind I'm not saying to quit running. I'm just saying you must expand on your present scope of fitness activities and don't rely on running exclusively for your exercise needs. You'll not only cut back drastically on future injuries, but will more than likely be a better runner as well as a better rounded and healthy person.

The letters you've sent have been very interesting, and the questions asked indicate a genuine interest in improving personal health and fitness.

Dear Jack:

I used to smoke a pack or more cigarettes a day before I started exercising. I tried for 12 years to quit smoking, and was only able to when I took up running. Exercising made me feel healthy and reduced my addictive craving. Is this true for many people?

Shawn Laney
Virginia Beach

Dear Shawn:

First of all, I'd like to congratulate you on your wise decision to abstain from smoking. I believe the reason that exercise is such an effective antidote, for not only cigarette smoking but many other forms of addiction, is that it replaces one type of sensation with another and at the same time creates a more profound physical awareness, which some people may not have experienced for a long time.

The actual sensation that people succumb to in most addictions is strictly an artificial and temporary way to deal with the stress in their lives. But the negative aspects of the counter-productive habits far outweigh any short-lived enjoyment they might derive from these substances.

On the other hand, consistent exercise creates a very substantial feeling of relaxation, both emotionally and physically, that creates new awareness in the simple, yet priceless feeling of God-given health.

The Mayor's Report

Virginia Beach Mayor
The Honorable
Meyera Oberndorf

Labor Day 1991... a peaceful, positive, powerful family weekend at the beach, highlighted by a diversity of entertainment and visitors.

After two years of diligent work by hundreds of dedicated individuals and groups, Virginia Beach has reinforced its reputation as a quality, family resort destination hosting visitors of all cultures to a spectacular vacation experience.

Labor Day 1991

There are just too many people to thank for all of the hard work that went into preparing for the 1991 Labor Day weekend. I would like to express special appreciation to several groups for their leadership roles.

Certainly, the Summer Events Liaison Committee volunteers, Beach Events, and the Department of Visitor and Convention Development deserve a round of applause for the spectacular venue of entertainment and special events they provided. From reggae music to powerboats, to parades to volleyball and fishing tournaments, there was truly something for everyone. Quality and diversity were the hallmark of the weekend.

Everyone deserves an "A" for a positive attitude. The visitors, reporters, police, deputies, clergy patrol, volunteers, entertainers and residents should be commended for keeping the weekend relaxed, safe and fun.

My only regret for the weekend was the weather and rough weather cancelled the Offshore Grand Prix Powerboat Race. We were all looking forward to watching these magnificent machines speed to the finish line as we relaxed on the beach. But not all was lost to the disappointment of bad weather. The Parade of Power proudly displayed the racers and their boats for thousands of visitors and residents on that Friday evening and everyone enjoyed the activities surrounding the race. I myself enjoyed a pre-race powerboat ride on Saturday. I know why they call them "power boats" - my adrenaline level is still high and my face is still windburned, but I loved every minute of it!

And even in the chill and wind the hearty volleyball teams competed with zest. Nothing could prevent these enthusiastic athletes from this team spirit sport. Hats off to the East Coast Volleyball Championship!

Your trust and faith in city government and your community in the past two years has allowed this city to recover and rebound from the tragedy of Labor Day 1989.

My special thanks and gratitude to the citizens of Virginia Beach. Your trust and faith in city government and your community in the past two years has allowed this great city to recover and rebound from the tragedy of Labor Day 1989. We invited objective review, faced our challenges and problems head on, and worked diligently to overcome adversity. And, we have gained wisdom along the way which I hope will lead us to even greater achievements in human relations in the future.

The VBEA Report

By Cheryl L. Tokac,
President of the Virginia
Beach Education Association

This week's Virginia Beach Sun article was written by Lisa Guthrie, VBEA vice president. Portions of this article can be credited to Robert Wagman, chief investigative reporter for Newspaper Enterprise Association.

During his 1988 campaign, George Bush constantly repeated that if elected, he intended to become known as the "education president." Now, after several false starts, he is attempting another proposal he says will revitalize the nation's primary and secondary schools.

The Bush administration plan, called "American 2000," seeks to make some very fundamental and controversial changes. It envisions spending an extra $1.2 billion over the next five years in order to reform U.S. education. This conflicts with the Bush administration proposal for an FY92 budget that would have raised some programs to pay for increases in others, eliminated 32 separate federal education programs, and resulted in a loss of about $1.5 billion for existing education programs.

America 2000 - Is Reform Ahead?

Some critics charge that the problem with American education is that the federal government does not spend enough to begin with. Bush doesn't agree. To help rally public support for his plan and steer it through a skeptical Congress, Bush named a new secretary of education, Lamar Alexander, a former Republican governor of Tennessee and president of the University of Tennessee.

At the heart of "American 2000" is the "New American Schools" concept. It calls for the creation by 1996 of 535 "nontraditional schools" - one in each of the nation's 435 congressional districts, and also two more in each state. The key is that Washington will not dictate what educational innovation should be or impose any models for these new schools. Rather, it seeks to inspire individual communities to creativity that can lead to reform. This plan also relies heavily on community volunteers.

Educators agree that our schools are in need of reform but question the likelihood of additional reliance on parent volunteers. We have already been very fortunate at Fairfield Elementary with respect to our "Volunteer in Education" program. We have an extremely visible PTA and can offer our students and teachers a variety of volunteer services. Storytelling, materials production, computer instruction and library assistance are among the areas where we have utilized volunteers in the past.

However, each year finds more and more full-time working moms and the volunteer ranks dwindle. With fewer than 650 students at Fairfield and only a half-day library secretary, we find ourselves constantly searching for parent volunteers. Since the great majority of parents have full-time jobs, it is questionable that the community can fill in for trained clerks and secretaries.

Funding to start these New American Schools would come partially from the federal government, partially from state and local revenues and partially from New American Schools Development Corporation, a privately funded, non-profit corporation established by interested business leaders. Once the schools are established, continued funding would come from local communities.

The Bush administration plan, called "American 2000," seeks to make some very fundamental and controversial changes... spending an extra $1.2 billion in five years to reform U.S. education.

Other key proposals in the Bush educational package include:
✓ U.S. standards: A presidential panel will report by the end of 1991 on what should be the educational standards for primary and secondary students.

✓ National tests: Voluntary nationwide tests in five core subjects.
✓ School choice: Possibly diverting resources from existing public schools so that parents could apply their share of federally allocated money to private or church-supported schools.

✓ Teacher pay: Teachers of special merit would somehow be rewarded.
✓ U.S. standards: A presidential panel will report by the end of 1991 on what should be the educational standards for primary and secondary students.

✓ Alternative certification: Allowance of easy mid-career entry into teaching.

Caution will need to be the watchword with these proposals. Certainly with the swelling ranks of at-risk students, a plan that "gives choices to all but the disadvantaged" to quote Secretary Alexander, has a fatal flaw.

Citizenship Day 1991

This year, as we the People commemorate the bicentennial of the ratification of the Bill of Rights, we are hearing a lot about the rights of citizenship. But, for every right there is a concomitant obligation, and little is being said about the important duties of citizenship.

While government under our Constitution makes American citizenship the highest privilege, at the same time it imposes the greatest responsibility of any citizenship in the world. Sadly, it appears that many have not learned this lesson.

The growing attention that civic literacy and civic values are receiving from scholars, educational groups, the government, the media and the public suggests that this is a critical issue. At a time when democracy is breaking out all over the world, based largely on the American experience, we the People must renew our commitment to the ideals stated in our treasured documents of government.

Democracy is a fragile plant and needs constant care or it will wither. Whose responsibility is it to train us to be good citizens so that democracy will not only survive, but thrive? Clearly, such training should begin in the home, but too often doesn't.

Yet we are all accountable. The seeds of destruction are within ourselves. As a comic strip character once put it, "We have met the enemy and it is us." Bad grammar but a graphic point. Too many young people are graduating without sufficient grounding in civic values.

Our schools must assume a large role in perhaps the most important lesson they teach. After all, the real mission of the schools is to train young people to be good citizens and assume their responsible roles in society.

Ernest L. Boyer, president, Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, says, "If civic education in the schools does not lead to responsible engagement in civic life, that means the schools have failed fundamentally. Knowledge alone is not the answer - it must lead to action that reflects preparation for the most important office in our nation - the office of citizen."

What better way to commemorate the 200th anniversary of the Bill of Rights than to draw up a Bill of Responsibilities. Even young children can list their duties. All citizens can become role models for the next generation by assuming their civic responsibilities.

Some of the duties of citizenship are obvious. We the People have a duty to obey the law, to vote so that our government may truly represent the will of the people, to pay taxes, to serve on a jury when called, and to defend the country. But we should also train our children and grandchildren to be good citizens.

At a time when Democracy is breaking out all over the world, based largely on the American experience, We the People must renew our commitment to the ideals stated in our treasured documents of government.

A few years ago, I attended a stimulating forum in Washington on the subject "Civic Literacy for the 21st Century: The Opening of the American Mind," sponsored by the Council for the Advancement of Citizenship (CAC). Many proposals were made concerning citizenship instruction. A teacher from Maryland explained that her state required students to pass a citizenship test and encouraged the schools to offer community-service classes and programs.

Senator William Jennings Randolph, CAC chairman, summed it up with this statement: "Our Democracy provides for a government of the people, for the people and by the people. If the habit of good citizenship and civic virtue which has made our nation strong over the years continues to wane, we will become a government of the few, by the few, for the few. Our democratic system relies on the collective wisdom of its members. Education for citizenship is a priority."

By Lillian Youell,
Virginia Beach Constitution
Celebration Committee
Consultant

For years, the 17th of September was celebrated as "Constitution Day" because it was on that day in 1787 that the Constitution was signed. Of course, that document was not ratified until 1788 and did not go into effect until 1789. Still, September 17 is a significant date in the nation's history. I regret that it is not highlighted on all calendars!

But, the Immigration and Naturalization Service supported a movement in 1939 to establish a special day of recognition of United States citizens, especially those recently naturalized. The American Legion and the National Education Association joined in and Congress passed a resolution on the following year, authorizing the first "I Am An American Day" observance that spring.

Then in 1952, the United States Justice Department, supported by the American Education Committee of the American Bar Association, promoted a joint resolution in Congress which replaced the name with "Citizenship Day" and changed the time of the observance to September 17. That resolution did, however, recognize the principle that the Constitution creates the basis for citizenship and the citizens maintain its ideals.

has five agents specifically assigned to Virginia Beach. Oberndorf asked whether the board had ever considered dividing the ABC establishments into categories - restaurants, nightclubs, lounges, etc.

Coleman said that the board is now discussing such changes.

Flo McDaniel, director of the Virginia Beach Hotel/Motel Association, said the organization opposed the ordinance until its impact on hotels could be clarified. She said that in many cases, hotel franchises require a lounge or a restaurant.

Michael Barrett, representing the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce, suggested that the ordinance be referred back to the Planning Commission, which had unanimously recommended approval, and that the commission appoint a task force consisting of restaurant interests, the Chamber of Commerce, citizens, staff and others affected.

He said that the chamber believes something should be done, but that the ordinance is not the way to do it. He said that the ordinance raises more questions than it answers. He cited an instance where a restaurant may be located in a shopping center - who's responsible?

McClanahan said that the council has "some duty to provide a reasonable quality of life." She said that many areas zoned B-2 are located in residential areas.

Sessoms wanted to know what the industry did to control the people who are intoxicated.

Dillon said that the industry tries to get everyone involved in the restaurant association, which has seminars.

Kal Kassir, chairman of the ABC Committee of the State Restaurant Association, said the problem is one of enforcement. He said that it was not fair to condemn a whole segment of the economy for the actions of a few.

One of the major problems is under-aged drinkers with fake IDs. He said that nobody wants to sell alcohol to minors because nobody wants to lose his or her alcohol license.

Bill Miller, president of the Virginia Beach Restaurant Association, said that while the problem is real, the ordinance is overkill. The tremendous regulations are a burden on the restaurants. "No wonder so many small businesses fail!" he said.

In answer to a question from Councilman Paul J. Lantegione, also a police officer, Miller said that in Norfolk an arbitrary license limit has been imposed in some areas. He added that Virginia Beach is getting a reputation of not having an atmosphere conducive to dealing with the problem.

Miller said that education is the only way.

John Perros, operator of Sir Richard's, and Giovanni's, submitted a list of regulatory agencies with which restaurants have to deal.

He said that the industry has a few who do not play ball, "but all industries have that."

A portion of the following paragraph from the mayor's report on road construction was accidentally deleted. The paragraph is printed here in its entirety.

Several key roadway projects are currently under construction. Virginia Beach Boulevard phase III, a VDOT project, will complete the eight-lane widening of Virginia Beach Boulevard from the Norfolk city line east to Great Neck Road. Dam Neck Road phases I and II will provide four lanes from Holland Road east to the Dam Neck Naval Base (phase II is a VDOT project). Independence Boulevard phase III increases this major arterial from four lanes to an eight-lane project through the Pembroke area. General Booth Boulevard phase II will complete the four-lane General Booth Boulevard project from Oceana Boulevard north to Croatan. Princess Anne Road phase III, which is being built in two sections, will complete the eight-lane widening of this major highway from Salem Road to Landsdown Road. The Pungo Ferry Road Bridge will provide the city with a permanent fixed-span crossing of the Intercoastal Waterway between the Pungo and Blackwater Boroughs.

The Land Of Sherry Blossom Comes To Visit Zenks In Kempsville

This article was submitted by Kempsville resident Larry Zenk, a Salem Junior High School social studies teacher.

My wife, step-daughter and I have recently bid "sayonara" to the best representative of their country the Japanese could have hoped to have.

Taeko Kono is a 4'11" dynamo of energy and enthusiasm. She came to America as part of a group of teachers and administrators from Hiroshima, Japan. The group's purpose was to tour American historical sites and establish permanent links with the Virginia Beach public school system.

The entire delegation of fifteen Japanese educators attempted to learn as much as possible about the American lifestyle by living with a volunteer, host family for the duration of their seven-day visit to Virginia Beach.

Their initial formality was never replaced, as the Japanese culture demands adherence to a strict code of behavior, but the development of friendship flourished amidst a whirlwind of activities.

We, the host families, were treated to many unique Japanese customs we had only read about but had never experienced. The rigid hierarchy of Japanese social status governed all interactions, all superiors were bowed to, conversations were cordial and spontaneous, but always within tight boundaries.

The evening dinner at a local Japanese restaurant was informative in developing knowledge about specific Japanese foods, but more culturally satisfying as the table more of Japan were introduced to us. All toasts were followed by a chorus of "kampai," which roughly translates to "cheers."

The leaders gave impromptu speeches that frequently touched an emotional chord as this American balanced the sincere desire for friendship with the intensity of the Japanese for a dominant position in the business world. The ability of the entire group to maintain a firm sense of balance was a credit to all concerned.

My family and I were treated to an unexpected surprise early in the visit when Taeko offered to show us a video of her traditional village, and the effort being made to preserve the ancient festival of planting rice. Her father was the leader of the festival and had achieved national recognition for the quality and durability of the ceremony. We naively asked if they still planted rice in the manner shown in the film, but were gently told that all planting activities were accomplished by machine. Why didn't I know that?

As we bid a tearful good-bye to our house guest and all of the delegation I could not help think of the rice festival and the transition Japan was under going as Gorbachev's plane landed back in Moscow.

Permits problems that alcohol causes.

McClan said that although some people seem to think that she reached up and pulled the ordinance out of the air, a lot of study went into it.

Assistant City Attorney William Macali said that a survey of regulations in the state was made and most places that have restrictive ordinances apply to the proximity of churches and schools.

He said that the Virginia Beach ordinance is modeled after the Norfolk ordinance. The Norfolk ordinance, however, applies not only to drinking establishments, but to adult book stores and similar operations.

He said that the ordinance represents a pro-active approach rather than a reactive approach to the problem. The ordinance, he said, does not apply to restaurants in hotels.

McClan said that the use of a conditional use permit is not unusual. The city requires one for a bingo hall and other equally less offensive uses.

The ordinance, said Macali, permits the city to revoke a license when the establishment violates the conditions.

McClan also said that the police department was included in discussions of the ordinance.

When an establishment keeps people awake at night, said McClan, it's "a grave concern."

Using a task force will take a year, she said. She suggested passing the ordinance to take care of the problem immediately and having the task force study the problem further. The ABC Board, she said, does not ask how appropriate a license applicant is to the neighborhood, but how he conforms to the rules of the board.

Heischberger said that the alcohol problem is not only inside establishments, but outside, and more problems apparently are created by off-premises drinking.

He said that the city needs "something," but that the ordinance did not cover the whole problem.

Oberndorf said that by allowing more time to work on the solution, something will come up that will be to the best interest of all the city.

Even with the ABC Board working with the police department, Brazier said, it takes a lot of evidence to have a license revoked. Having to go to Richmond to encounter the ABC board, he said, doesn't help the people down the street. The ordinance, he said, is not aimed at restaurants. He said that if the city can get to the trouble it does requiring certain fence heights and "where you're going to put landscaping," the city could add the ordinance. If the city had a conditional use permit process, it could do something about the complaints.

McClan added that there is no way to control the establishments except through zoning.

McClan said, "We're not trying to deprive the people of their rights."

The entrepreneurs have a right to appeal decisions, but usually, she said the owners will comply.

Back Bay Refuge Host Workshop For Teachers

A workshop for elementary and middle school teachers will be held on Saturday, Sept. 21 from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at the Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge.

The session will help provide teachers with the skills and information required to effectively plan environmental education trips to the refuge.

Participants will receive an orientation to the refuge. The orientation will emphasize habitats, resident and migratory wildlife, programs, facilities and current projects. A bus tour of the refuge will help tie these elements together.

Other topics to be covered will include environmental education resource materials, pre-trip planning and visit day logistics. All teachers will receive information sheets, resource materials packets and lists of equipment available for their use.

The remainder of the program will feature a hands-on preview of selected outdoor activities which have proven records of success. Beach, pond and marsh habitats will be explored in various activities.

The workshop will be held at the Refuge Visitor Contact Station, located in Sandbridge at the end of Sandpiper Road.

The program is free. Attendance will be limited to 30 persons.

Reservations are required and can be made by calling the refuge at 721-2412, Monday through Friday from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Brenda Williams and Ethel McPherson

A Friend, Indeed!

This article was written by Tracy Bullock, Virginia public information intern. This story could just as easily have been subtitled "diamonds are a girl's best friend."

In separate incidents, Brenda Williams and Ethel McPherson both of the city's General Services department, went beyond the call of duty to help fellow city employees.

Williams, an evening custodial employee, discovered, upon arriving at work, that Sandy Smith of General Services had lost the stone from a ring in her office. Smith received the ring as a birthday gift several weeks earlier and noticed that the emerald was missing. Smith had no luck finding the stone before she left work for the evening. Having heard of the loss from another employee, Williams used a broom to sweep the floor in an attempt to find the stone without damaging it. Through her diligence, Williams retrieved the emerald and returned it to its rightful owner.

One week earlier, Ann McFatrige of the city's Planning Department was at home when she rubbed her ear and discovered that her diamond earring was missing. Meanwhile, McPherson, also a nighttime worker, was preparing to clean McFatrige's office when she noticed a shiny object under the chair. The next morning when McFatrige arrived at work, the earring was on her desk. While McFatrige feels that honesty should come naturally, she said it is still wonderful when a person returns an important possession. McFatrige rewarded McPherson for her good deed.

City Honors John Macioce For War Efforts

Mayor Meyera Oberndorf recently issued the following proclamation:

Whereas: When America needed this nation's best to defend the right to freedom, certain city employees did diligently and proudly respond to that call to duty in Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm;

Whereas: These employees interrupted their professional and personal lives, leaving the safety and familiarity of work and home to experience the unknown challenges of active duty;

Whereas: You did expertly and skillfully perform your patriotic duties with courage and pride, whether your assignment took you stateside or abroad;

Whereas: Your dedicated performance of duty in Operations Desert Shield and Desert Storm was a positive reflection on Virginia Beach city government and this community; and,

Whereas: The city of Virginia Beach is extremely proud of John Macioce's distinguished service to his country and acknowledges the many sacrifices made by his family;

Now, therefore, I, Meyera E. Oberndorf, mayor of the city of Virginia Beach, do officially welcome back John Macioce and express Virginia Beach's gratitude and appreciation to him and his family.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the official seal of the city of Virginia Beach to be affixed this 14th day of August, Nineteen Hundred and Ninety-One.

Police Arrest Civilian Employee

The Virginia Beach police department, after investigating the embezzlement of $471 cash from its Services Division, recently arrested civilian employee, Irene E. Nenneley, age 57, a resident of the city of Virginia Beach.

Nenneley, a Clerk III assigned to the Property and Evidence Section of the Services Division, was suspended from the job, pending the outcome of the charge against her.

The embezzlement was alleged to have occurred July 26, 1991, and was brought to the attention of investigators by a sworn officer assigned to that same section.

The missing money, not part of any criminal trial, was being stored in Property and Evidence pending the location of its owner or turnover to the state.

Nenneley was released on a $1,500 personal recognizance bond.

Recreation center workers have a little fun.

'It's The Best Deal In Town'

Diverse Group Of Men And Women Drawn To Fun At The Aragona Recreation Center

By Virginia Gayle
Special To The Sun

"It's the best deal in town," said Henry Ulman, speaking of the senior citizens' luncheons and dances served up nine times a year at Aragona Community Recreation Center.

There is no charge. Those who attend hold a dollar-a-year association membership in the center, available at the door.

People of diverse ages and backgrounds come together at the dances to share live music, good food, friendship and, in passing, the memories of a lifetime.

From the vibrant "youngsters" of 60 who grab a partner on the downbeat of "The Woodchoppers' Ball," to the World War I veteran who is sometimes able to come, to mingle with friends and listen to the music - what stories they could tell!

Paul Maul, who was at a recent recreation center dance, was a quartermaster serving on the U.S.S. Pennsylvania, sister ship to the U.S.S. Arizona, on Dec. 7, 1941.

Having completed six weeks of fleet maneuvers in the area from which the Japanese attack would subsequently come, the Pennsylvania, said Maul, was tied up at Pearl Harbor on the morning of Dec. 5. She left the spot on the morning of Dec. 6, and went into drydock at the Pearl Harbor Navy Yard.

The U.S. Arizona later tied up in the slot vacated by the Pennsylvania. Her fate in the Sunday morning attack that precipitated United States entry into World War II became an American tragedy.

What stores Maul could tell. As a survivor of the hell that was Pearl Harbor, he's paid his dues.

Peggy Thiers, another celebrant at the recent party, came from a theatrical family. Father, mother and sisters, said Thiers herself worked with the stars of the '30s.

Still a trooper, Thiers is currently involved in choreographing "Li'l Abner" at the Little Creek Amphibious Base.

Anna Schmidt, a vibrant former nurse of proudly Norwegian origin, is another recreation center party-goer.

Her age?
"I'm just 88," says Schmidt. Her accent still lends charm to her

Rarely missing a beat in her full schedule, Schmidt swims, dances, plays the harp, sings in her church choir, takes long walks and ... the list goes on and on.

Among her greatest pleasures has been the honor of singing the Norwegian anthem at the Norwegian Lady ceremonies two years ago, the on-going pleasure of entertaining friends in her home, and singing and playing at the behest of various charitable organizations.

She's come a long way since she passed through Ellis Island. What stories SHE could tell!
With a wrap-up of "That's All," the Red Coats Band called it a day at the recent dance, and groups drifted out.

Douglas and Roger Levesque, unbelievably in their early seventies and celebrating their 55th wedding anniversary, paused to chat.

"You can't be 72," Douglas, the smiling, diminutive woman was told. "You've got it too all-together!"

"I might not have it all together next week," said Douglas, "but, yes, I've got it all together now." And she flashed her wide, wonderful grin.

Would the Levesques have a story to tell?

You'd better believe it.
The next Aragona Community Recreation Center dance will be held on the last Sunday in October from 1 to 5 p.m., 595 Delaura Lane.

Pendleton Child Service Center Celebrates

The Pendleton Child Service Center that serves both the Virginia

Beach and Chesapeake communities will celebrate its 18th anniversary on Monday, Sept. 16.

The event, to take place at the facility located at 1000 South Birdneck Road, will include proclamations by both Virginia Beach Mayor Meyera E. Oberdorff and Chesapeake Mayor William Ward. The Honorable Owen B. Pickett, U.S. House of Representatives, will also address the crowd.

The anniversary celebration is scheduled to run from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m., with the formal program running from noon to 1 p.m. A celebration pig-picking will follow.

Pendleton offers families of Chesapeake and Virginia Beach a wide range of services for children between the ages of 3 and 13 who are experiencing behavioral problems at school or at home.

Sandcastle Classic: Sept. 28 And 29 Along Boardwalk

The Tidewater Health Care and Virginia Beach General Hospital Sandcastle Classic is set for Saturday, Sept. 28 and Sunday, Sept. 29 along the boardwalk between 28th Street and 32nd Street.

"This event is in its 18th year and gets bigger every year," said Jim Gianscoli, this year's festival chairman. "We get participants from as far away as the West Coast. And more spectators attend every year."

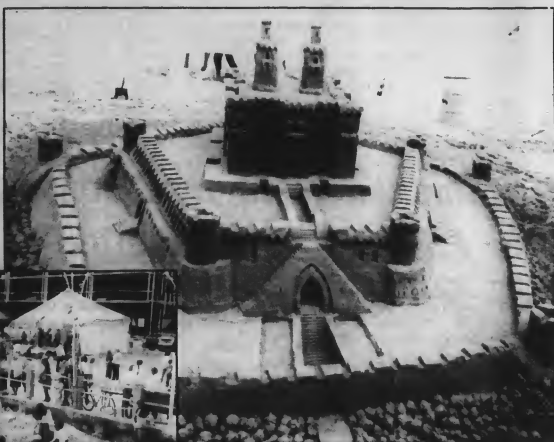

The event begins each day at 8 a.m. Judging on Saturday is at 1 p.m. and Sunday at 2:30 p.m. Anyone interested in building should call 446-2778 during working hours.

Categories of competition include (Saturday) youth and freelance groups. Entry fees for youth and freelance groups are $10 and $15, respectively. Sunday competition includes business/organizations ($50 fee), A.I.A. ($75 fee) and master's professional and sculptor's ($100 fee).

The Sandcastle Classic is sponsored by Tidewater Health Care and Virginia Beach General Hospital. Trophy prizes in all groups will be awarded. The masters will receive $2,000 first place, $1,000 second and $500 for third place.

Virginia Beach Neptune Festival '91, Neptune's Golden Odyssey celebrates the 18th anniversary of the festival.

The sandcastle building contest has become a major attraction for those with an architectural eye.

Health-Oriented Events To Be Held On Sept. 21

Three health oriented Virginia Beach General Hospital Neptune Festival events have been set for Saturday, Sept. 21: the 5K run, wellness walk and 1-mile fun run.

All events are being sponsored by and held at Virginia Beach General Hospital behind the Health Education Center. Early registration may be made by calling HealthQuest at 481-8141. On the day of the events, the 5K registration begins at 7:30 a.m. with race time at 9 a.m. The Wellness Walk begins at 8 a.m. and the 1-Mile Run at 8:30 a.m.

Pre-event costs for all events are $8, and everyone receives a race T-shirt. The 5K is $10 for registration after Sept. 16.

"This is the 10th year of these competitions. We expect more than 250 participants who are trying to take home one of the Neptune Festival medals," said Joe Gianascoli, this year's festival chairman.

Categories for judging include: 5K - top three male, female in each category; Fun Run - top male, female in 12 and younger and 13 and older; Walk - top male, female 39 and younger, 40 to 54 and 55 and older.

Lynnhaven Fishhouse Strives For Customer Satisfaction

Virginia Beach, one of Tidewater's newest, largest and fastest growing cities, is the home of the ever-popular, Lynnhaven Fish House Restaurant.

This haven for lovers of seafood is the ongoing challenge of owners Thomas C. Kyrus, and his son Christopher.

Nestled on the shore of the alluring Chesapeake Bay, the view from the dining area offers the romance of a beachfront dining experience touched by the silhouette of the adjoining Lynnhaven Fishing Pier and the graceful lines of the famous Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel in the not-too-distant background.

Drawing upon his years of experience in operating his own real estate business, a people-oriented profession, Mr. Kyrus has skillfully considered and met the needs of this area by providing one of the finest seafood restaurants on the East Coast. Whether dining while on business or for pleasure, the relaxed and quiet atmosphere and remarkable menu, entwined with service reminiscent of southern hospitality, creates within the customer the feeling that he or she has found a special place, indeed. As indeed they have.

Lynnhaven Fish House Restaurant is a 1991 recipient of the top 50 seafood restaurants in the U.S.A. The Academy Awards of the Restaurant Industry.

The menu features vast offerings, ranging from succulent shellfish appetizers and unusual salads and soups, to gourmet seafood entrees and basic "old favorites," with a modest selection of the finest beef. The dessert menu features, among other offerings, a Belgium whiskey pudding that is irresistible.

Each item is skillfully and distinctively prepared by chef Joseph Zurenski, who has a flair for creating sauces to delight the most ardent gourmet. "Chef Joseph," as he is known to all who have sampled his culinary seafood triumphs, is able to bring forth an artful presentation that is unsurpassed. With a pourpouri culinary background, he has a wealth of experience and skill to draw upon to please the most discerning diner.

Chef Joseph is a graduate of Johnson and Wales Culinary University.

A spirit of teamwork exists within the framework of Lynnhaven Fish House Restaurant's operation. The staff works together toward a common goal - providing customers with a comfortable, totally satisfying and pleasurable dining experience. The entire staff works diligently toward keeping the fine reputation the Lynnhaven House Restaurant has earned.

A variety of entertainment is planned each year, including motorcycle exhibitions by members of the Khedive Temple.

Fireworks Display To Be Held On End Of 14th Street Pier

The Neptune Festival fireworks display is set for Saturday, September 28 at 9 p.m. from the end of the Virginia Beach pier on 14th Street.

"People all along the boardwalk will have prime viewpoints again this year," said Joe Gianascoli, this year's festival chairman.

The state-of-the-art fireworks display, designed by Vitale Fireworks, will follow the theme of the festival. Fountain-like natural fireworks with golden accents will shoot out of the water along with flying saucer fireworks exploding in the sky. The finale is planned to be the biggest extravaganza in the history of the event.

The performance is approximately 20 to 30 minutes long and is sponsored in part by Norfolk Southern.

Tennis Tourney Set For Sept. 14-22

The Neptune Junior Open Tennis Tournament will be held Saturday through Sunday, Sept. 14 through 22, at the Owls Creek Municipal Tennis Center. Hours are Monday through Friday, 3:30 to 9:30 p.m.; and Saturday and Sunday, 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

"The Neptune Junior Open Tennis Tournament is one of the largest junior tennis tournaments in Hampton Roads," said Joe Gianascoli, the festival's chairman. "Now in its 14th year, the tournament attracts over 230 participants. Its popularity is astounding."

The tournament will offer trophies in the singles and doubles competitions in the following categories: girls and boys divisions for ages 10 and under, 12 and under, 14 and under, 16 and under and 18 and under. A mixed double competition is available for ages 10 to 14 and ages 15 to 18. Cost is $6 per person for singles and $8 per team for doubles.

Call Gayle Adcock, tournament director, at 471-5884 to obtain an application or to register. Spectators are welcome. The deadline for registration is Sept. 5. The event is being sponsored by Crestar Bank and CIGNA companies.

Grand Parade Scheduled For Sept. 28

The Neptune Festival Grand Parade will occur Saturday, September 28 beginning at 1 p.m. along Atlantic Avenue from 12th Street to 27th Street.

"The many high school marching bands, colorful floats and military units attract tens of thousands of spectators of all ages to Neptune Festival," said

Joe Gianascoli, this year's festival chairman. "We consider the Grand Parade one of the primary elements of Neptune Festival."

This year's parade includes a special appearance by members of the mounted police equestrian teams from all over the U.S. and Canada. For additional information, call 498-0215.

Ku Named Concertmaster Of Orchestra Va. Beach

Orchestra Virginia Beach has a new concertmaster and a new director of personnel.

Hsiao-Mei Ku, a member of the famed Ciompi Quartet at Duke University and a faculty member at the school, has been named concertmaster. She replaces Leonid Keylin, who has accepted a full-time position as a principal violinist with the Seattle Symphony.

Keylin had served as concertmaster for the orchestra (formerly Virginia Beach Pops) for seven years.

Roy Muth, a trumpet player with Orchestra Virginia Beach, has been appointed director of personnel succeeding Dan

Smith, who will continue as an oboist.

Ku has performed with Orchestra Virginia Beach intermittently during the past three years. Her experience includes service as concertmaster for the North Carolina Symphony's Appalachian Summer Music Festival and of the Peking Tsung-Cheng orchestra in China where she taught violin, toured and performed on.

She was associate concertmaster of the Spoleto Festival orchestra in Charleston, South Carolina, and in Spoleto, Italy, and of the Philharmonic orchestra at Indiana University.

Ku received her Master's of Music degree in violin from Indiana University where she was a scholarship student and a performer's certification winner. She received extensive music education in China and was a special student in music at Iowa State University.

Expressing pride and anticipation with her appointment and with Orchestra Virginia Beach's plans, Ku said she looks forward to working with the orchestra toward an expanded musical repertoire.

"I hope our audience, which has been very loyal to us, will come and relax and enjoy the concerts everyone in the orchestra is working hard to present," Ku said.

Music director Walter Noona was effusive in his announcement of Ku's appointment.

"Being able to replace an established concertmaster of the stature of Leonid Kevin with someone with Hsiao-Mei Ku's credentials is a real tribute to our orchestra. We congratulate Leonid on his promotion, and we look forward to Hsiao-Mei's leadership during the coming season, and, hopefully, for the years to come."

Trumpeter Roy Muth is no newcomer to orchestral management. Prior to joining Orchestra Virginia Beach, Muth managed his own group which performed on the Eastern Seaboard. He has freelanced with Tommy Newsome's Big Band and the Four Freshmen among others, and with local and state orchestras.

Muth holds a bachelor's degree in music from Old Dominion University. He and his family live in Virginia Beach.

"This new team, coupled with other changes and already in place, indicate new spirit in our orchestra," Noona said. "We truly believe that the audience we have developed over the past eight years, and the audience we are seeking to attract, will become increasingly more aware of the quality and variety in our programming in the months ahead."

Concert Season To Begin On Sept. 29

Carol Stokes, a Suzuki-trained violinist, launches the concert season on Sunday, Sept. 29 in a performance of Bluegrass music. Her appearance is the first ever by a Bluegrass performer with Orchestra Virginia Beach.

Stokes has a master's in violin from Vanderbilt University and was concertmaster of the University of Tennessee Orchestra. She recently released her first album, "Carol Stokes Plays Bluegrass Favorites," and will be seen this season on the Public Broadcasting System, with Bill Monroe and the Bluegrass Boys in an anthology about Bluegrass music in America.

Soprano Marilyn Thompson and the Virginia Symphonic Chorus headline an historic program on Sunday, Oct. 20, which will be recorded by National Public Radio for broadcast on 100 stations across the country. The national broadcast is a first for Orchestra Virginia Beach.

The program will feature compositions by Black Americans, including those of Norfolk State University's Dr. Alphonso Hailstork, Hampton University's Nathaniel Dett, Roland Carter, Duke Ellington, Scott Joplin and Julius Williams.

Thompson teaches voice at Hampton University and is a summer guest artist at Saratoga and on other stages in the United States and in Europe. She recently performed at the Smithsonian Institute in a concert broadcast by National Public Radio. Roland Carter, choral director of the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga and former choral director at Hampton University, will accompany Thompson on one of his compositions.

The annual holiday concert, which regularly attracts sell-out crowds, will be held on Sunday, Dec. 15, with music director Walter Noona conducting. The musical atmosphere will be very festive this year with Noona at the piano and Hsiao-Mei Ku, the orchestra's new concertmaster, featured in

Boardwalk Celebration - Entertainment For The Entire Family

"The annual Boardwalk Celebration of the Neptune Festival is considered by many to be one of the highlights of the event," says Joe Gianaccoli, this year's festival chairman, "so we've expanded again in 1991."

Held this year along the oceanfront on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, September 27 through 29, there will be many new and exciting additions.

On Saturday, spectators will be treated to the color and excitement of the new Four Sails Neptune Catamaran race, beginning at 8 a.m. Saturday.

The MCI Telecommunications Street Fair, from 1 to 4 p.m. Sunday, will feature local high school teams competing in Olympic-style games of fun and skill. The event will topped off with a banana split-building extravaganza in an effort to break the record for the world's largest banana split. Everyone is invited to help build (and help eat!) this most delectable of desserts.

Boardwalk Stages will offer a dizzying array of entertainment this year. At 10th Street, the Budweiser Surfside Stage will offer Country Western selections, while at 18th Street, the Budweiser OceanSide Stage will offer a great variety of Rock and Top 40 acts.

The Miller Beach Cabana Stage, at 24th Street Park, will feature Beach music and the 15th Street Stage will host a variety of family and children's entertainment.

"As in past years, the festival has arranged a superb lineup of talent to perform throughout the three days. There will be something for everyone to enjoy," Joe continued.

"We also have a wide array of foods and beverages that people have come to expect from Boardwalk 'Weekend at the Festival.' Nearly 70 vendors have been selected to participate, offering food items from around the world.

Hillegass Is Celebrating Thirty Years Of Service

As of September of 1991, Hillegass Lighting has been serving the lighting fixture and wholesale electrical supply needs of Tidewater and eastern North Carolina for 30 years.

In fact, Reon Hillegass, president and founder, has been active in the electrical business for some 40 years.

He spent 10 years with another company before opening the first Hillegass Lighting location at Military Highway and Bainbridge Boulevard. The company has been at this current location, 1728 South Military Highway, for 22 years.

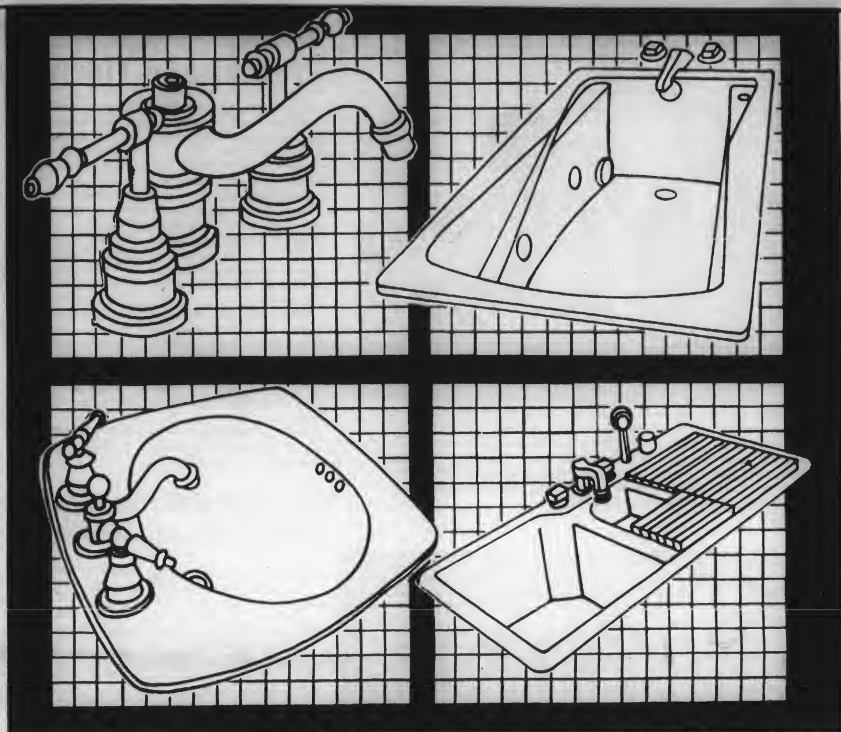

Hillegass Lighting specializes in electrical supplies and lighting fixtures. The fixture department caters to both the commercial and residential market. Today, Hillegass has a residential showroom of over 7,500-square feet displaying everything from competitive project fixtures to the highest quality domestic and imported lighting fixtures.

In the Hillegass showroom you will find a large selection for all tastes. Contemporary, traditional and a complete line of recessed and track lighting are available.

Hillegass Lighting is proud to have served Virginia Beach, Tidewater and eastern North Carolina for all these years and is grateful for the support many contractors and homeowners have given over the years.

The company is happy to support the Neptune Festival and hope that this year's will be the best.

Thompson To Be In Concert Oct. 20

Soprano Marilyn Thompson discusses her October 20 concert with Orchestra Virginia Beach with Bob Dedman, OVB president, Urban League board member E.A. Harris, and league president Eric Fox. In an historic concert featuring Miss Thompson and the compositions of 10 Black American composers, the two performances will be recorded by National Public Radio and broadcast nationwide at a later date. The Urban League of Hampton Roads, Inc. is sponsoring the concert. The broadcast will be the first featuring Orchestra Virginia Beach to be heard over the full 10-member complement of NPR stations. Walter Noone is the orchestra's music director for Orchestra Virginia Beach.

Mega Mazda Is Exclusive Franchise In Tidewater

Located at 4372 Holland Road in Virginia Beach, Mega Mazda is the only exclusive Mazda franchise in the Tidewater area.

Although the dealership will celebrate its seventh anniversary at the new Holland Road location in September, its lineage can be traced back to 1976 when Mazda Motors of America awarded the franchise to Harold Heischobler, then an exclusive Volkswagen dealer in the Hilltop area of Virginia Beach.

Concurrently, Heischobler was honored as "Time Magazine Quality Dealer Award" for 1976, the industry's most prestigious award for outstanding performance as an automobile dealer and contributions to his community.

Early in 1983, the business moved to a temporary location on Virginia Beach Boulevard in the Pembroke section of the Beach, pending completion of the Holland Road facility. Finally, in September of 1984 construction was completed and the dealership opened to provide exclusive Mazda sales and service to an ever-expanding market.

While Mega Mazda prides itself in being a modern, innovative dealership employing state of the art technology in all phases of operations, it has never lost sight of the importance of close, personal customer contact; a friendly, relaxed way of doing business; and efficient, reliable after-the-sale service.

In short, it is the goal of making the buying and maintaining of a new automobile an enjoyable experience which has made Mega Mazda a leader in the automotive field.

250 Hampton Roads Surfers To Display Talents At Oceanfront

Zero's Mr. Submarine Surfing Classic will be held Saturday, Sept. 21, Sunday, Sept. 22, Saturday, Sept. 28 and Sunday, Sept. 29. The contest will be held at the oceanfront on 14th Street, beginning at 7:30 a.m. each day.

"The Surfing Classic has become a prestige contest among the surfers of Hampton Roads, as it attracts 250 of mostly local entries," said Joe Gianacoli, this year's festival chairman.

Registration is available by calling 456-2163 or by picking up forms available at all area surf shops. The contest has various categories based on age and sex, as well as by type of equipment. The registration fee is $20. The event is open to spectators.

Live And Hands-On Exhibits At Marine Science Museum

Visitors to the Virginia Beach Marine Science Museum can come nose-to-nose with a 75-pound red drum fish in the museum's Chesapeake Bay Aquarium and pick up a giant prehistoric-looking horseshoe crab at the Touch Tank.

They can walk with live birds and turtles among the plants in the Coastal River Room and they can examine the magnified, razor-sharp mouth of a horseshoe in the Salt Marsh Room.

They can take a journey of water through Virginia, following a raindrop from the mountains to the sea, and they can experience man's relationship to the marine environment by working their muscles with a pair of oyster tongs and by testing their "pollution solutions" with a computer.

Virginia Beach, the only city located on both the Atlantic Ocean and the Chesapeake Bay, was destined by nature to become the site of this museum which focuses exclusively on Virginia's marine environment. Since the doors opened in June, 1986, almost 2,000,000 visitors, residents and school children have toured the facility for a close-up look at this unique world.

The museum is located at 717

General Booth Boulevard on Owls Creek salt marsh. A one-fifth mile long outdoor boardwalk proves an ideal setting for a first hand view of the marsh and its birds, fiddler crabs and other wildlife.

Each year the museum's education department schedules programs for more than 45,000 children. Special curricula have been developed for students, kindergarten through grade 12, who come to the museum on field trips. In addition, the Chesapeake Bay Marine Learning Lab carries the word about Virginia's marine environment to schools across the state.

Group rates are available for pre-arranged visits. The museum is open daily, except Christmas and New Year's, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. General admission fees are $4.25 for adults, $3.50 for children ages 4 through 12; $3.85 for senior citizens and free for children 3 and under. Call 435-FISH for more information.

"We're first and foremost an educational institution," says museum director, C. Mac Rawls. "We're very excited about the museum's potential for teaching through seeing and experimentation."

The impetus for this look at Virginia's marine environment began more than a decade ago when Virginia Beach City Council, the school board and a group of interested citizens determined to meet the need for marine education in the state. E. Verner Johnson and Associates of Boston, a firm that has participated in the planning and design of more than 50 museums, including the Boston Museum of Science and a complex for the Smithsonian Institution, was hired to create the museum's master plan.

The plan called for 41,500-square-foot facility housing nearly 100,000 gallons of fresh and saltwater aquariums, in combination with numerous hands-on exhibits to involve the visitor in every aspect of the state's marine environment.

The largest aquarium is the magnificent 50,000-gallon Chesapeake Bay tank, which represents the are from the Chesapeake Bay beach to the first island of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. A touch tank simulates the shallow waters of the bay where visitors can pick up the horseshoe crab and other harmless animals. The floor of the hall slopes downward as the aquarium gets deeper. Visitors descend, as though they are walking under the waves, and come face-to-face with the red drum and other Chesapeake Bay creatures.

Special temporary exhibits, such as "Sea Stars," are mounted yearly. The past temporary exhibits have focused on topics ranging from Virginia sea turtles to Chesapeake Bay jellyfish.

More than 30 major exhibits also use hands-on technology to inform and challenge museum visitors. These exhibits include a marine weather room and seawater chemistry experiments.

Throughout the year, public programs offer many additional educational opportunities for museum visitors.

Daily programs include fish feedings, films and special activities in different areas of the museum. Children's programs, field trips and lectures are also part of the education program.

Commonwealth College Offers A Wide Variety Of Programs

Thinking about going back to school? Ready to start college for the first time? You've probably noticed ads on TV, on the radio, and in the newspapers for all sorts of schools. How do you know which program is best for you? Which school will give you what you want?

An interesting alternative that might be right for you is an associate degree from a career college. An associate degree is traditionally a 2-year program with one of two goals: to prepare the student for a career in a business or technical area; or, to fill the minimum requirements of a bachelor's degree so the student can transfer to a 4-year institution.

This second type, known as a 2 + 2 program, usually requires the student to take many liberal arts classes, therefore not much exposure is received to the student's chosen career field. Should you wish to leave school or decide that a 4-year degree is not really what you wanted, you probably won't be much better off trying to get a job than you were before you attended college.

Which is not to say it wasn't worth going. Education is a wonderful asset for anyone to have, regardless of the area of study. But keep in mind what you hope to gain from college - exploration of a new area or a new job and better skills?

If your primary motivator is obtaining a meaningful and rewarding career, a private junior college like Commonwealth can train you in essential job skills and give you guidance in the best methods for getting your career started in as few as 18 months.

Commonwealth College offers classes in areas of high demand, like accounting, business management, travel and hospitality, medical assisting, legal assisting, computer technology, office administration, electronics technology and fashion merchandising. In addition, you'll receive helpful advice on preparing your resume, interviewing skills, obtaining job leads and developing a professional attitude and image.

Commonwealth College, established in 1889, has five campuses - in Norfolk, Portsmouth, Virginia Beach, Hampton and Richmond, and is now Virginia's largest private junior college. Over 25,000 graduates have used Commonwealth College over the years as a method of learning job-related skills.

The Adult Division makes it convenient for the older student to return to school through offering a day and evening classes, a 3-day schedule, and child care on campus at all locations.

For recent high school graduates, Commonwealth has created "Professional Development Day," turning Wednesdays into an additional opportunity to learn about the job world through guest lecturers, clubs and other campus activities.

The admissions office is open 6 days a week. Call the main campus in Virginia Beach at 340-0222 for additional details on programs and class openings available.

Bingo Party To Be Held

The Princess Anne Commercial Bank Seniors' Celebrity Bingo party will be held Tuesday, September 24 from 7 to 9:30 p.m. in the Virginia Beach Dome on 19th Street and Pacific Avenue.

The event is free, but advance tickets must be picked up at Princess Anne Commercial Bank, the sponsor of the event. For additional information call 486-9400.

8K Run Scheduled For 28th

The Sentara Health System 8K Run will be held at 8 a.m., Saturday, Sept. 28 along the oceanfront, starting at 24th and Atlantic Avenue.

"The event is very popular among running enthusiasts and has expanded each year," said Joe Gianascoli, this year's chairman. Registration begins at 7 a.m.

The sponsor of the event is Sentara Health System. For additional information call 498-0215.

Thousands of people, both locals and tourists, are attracted to the boardwalk each year for the annual Neptune Festival. This year's festival promises to be the most exciting yet.

Mounted Police Competition Slated

The first annual Neptune Mounted Police Equestrian Competition is slated for Sept. 29 from 9 a.m. to dark. To be held at Camp Pendleton State Military Reservation, spectators are invited.

"We are very excited to host this important new event," said Joe Gianascoli, this year's Neptune Festival chairman. "Mounted police teams will attend from all over the United States and Canada. We expect in excess of 75 competitors that day."

The equestrian competition will include a uniform class, equitation class, obstacle course and a fleeing felon class. Awards will be given to the teams that accumulate the highest number of points.

Spectators will be admitted free-of-charge and free parking will be available. Food and beverages will be offered, with proceeds going to the Friends of the Mounted, a local mounted police support group.

Precision Flight Teams Set To Perform At NAS Oceana

A host of military and civilian precision flight teams will perform during continuous shows from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. at Neptune Festival '91 on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 21 and 22. The shows are free and open to the public at NAS Oceana.

"Featured acts will include the Holiday Inn Aerobatics Team, the civilian counter part to the Navy's Blue Angels; The French Connection, a husband and wife team; the best in hi-tech military aircraft; and U.S. Navy Seal parachutists. Many of the demonstrations will be by the same types of aircraft which fought and won Operation Desert Storm," said Joe Gianascoli, this year's festival chairman. NAS Oceana is open to the general public for the performances. Gates open at 9 a.m. both days.

There is special parking and seating for the handicapped. Approximately 150,000 people are expected to attend as the Navy shows its appreciation for public support of NAS Oceana and a salute to Neptune Festival.

The boardwalk will be cluttered with art exhibits, vending booths and much more at the 1991 Neptune Festival. If you don't look out, a "mime" may capture your attention and "drag" you to a concert.

Youth Art Show Scheduled For Sept. 29

The Neptune Festival Youth Art Show is set for Sunday, Sept. 29 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. along the Boardwalk from 27th to 30th Streets.

"The show features the best art from high school students in the city of Virginia Beach," said Joe Gianascoli, this year's chairman.

The event is sponsored by The Naval Air Federal Credit Union and the Lighthouse Restaurant.

The exhibition is free and open to the public. For more information call 496-6711.

"COOKING IS AN ART" At Johnson & Wales

Johnson & Wales University has long been known as "the Harvard of Culinary Arts."

The prestigious institution based in Providence, RI, was founded in 1914 as a business college and has mushroomed over the years with added program offerings and additional branch campuses in Charleston, SC, the island of St. Maarten and, locally in Norfolk.

Johnson & Wales University in Norfolk is a Culinary Arts Division. Students pursue either a certificate or an associate degree in Culinary Arts. Many students go to Providence to work in the college owned properties to fulfill their hands-on training for graduation requirements. Other students who qualify work in prestigious co-op sites such as the Greenbrier Country Club, Williamsburg Inn, and Pinehurst in North Carolina.

Student enrollment at Johnson & Wales is a little over 200. Students can pursue their program either during the day or in the continuing education program during evenings and weekends. Students range from recent high school graduates to transfer students from other institutions, or career change people.

No matter what their age, background, or experience, the students enroll with a strong desire to be a success in the foodservice industry. And through the help of such required classes as Professional Development and Psychology of Success, J&W graduates are successful and in demand. Many graduates receive four to five job offers.

Some freshmen come to Johnson & Wales with cooking experience, however, it is not a prerequisite. If an applicant does have a considerable amount of foodservice experience, he may qualify for the Advanced Standing Program. If a person aspires to be a chef, caterer, owner or foodservice professional, Johnson & Wales - America's Career University - is the place to go to realize their goals.

Cooking is serious business at Johnson & Wales, but it doesn't have to be. The University offers hands-on recreational cooking classes for the "Chef-by-Hobby." Courses are usually three hours long and range in price from $25 to $35, depending on the course content. All of the classes culminate with sampling of the food prepared. Some popular classes are "Take A Wok," "Christmas Catering" and "Cooking Cajun." This program for cooking enthusiasts is called "Chef's Choice." The fall "Chef's Choice" brochure is hot off the press. Call Johnson & Wales at 853-3508 to receive a brochure of the upcoming classes. The chef's choice coordinator recommends early registration because classes fill quickly. Cooking's all the rage! And where better to learn to cook than with Johnson & Wales - where cooking is an art!

For more information about Johnson & Wales University and its programs, contact the Admissions Office at 853-3508 or 2428 Alameda Avenue, Suite 316, Norfolk, VA 23513.

Numerous Children's Activities Planned For '91 Netune Festival

Sea shell, tic tac toe, beach blanket bingo, sandcastle building, magic and a parade will highlight the beachfront activities for children during the Virginia Beach Neptune Festival Youth Day on Saturday, September 28.

From 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. children can get plenty of sand between their toes during a kaleidoscope of hands-on activities, located between 10th Street and 18th Street on boardwalk and oceanfront.

The youth parade will begin at 9:30 a.m. from the Dome and will head south along the boardwalk to 8th Street.

In addition to kid-size sandcastle building, activities will include fishing for sea treasures, a clam dig, frisbee bull's eye, mini-volleyball, paddleball, tetherball, mini golf, mini baseball and face painting. All activities are free and open to the public and parents will be encouraged to join in on the fun.

Souvenirs will be given to children who take part in the oceanfront games. The event is sponsored by T.J. Maxx.

10th Street Stage:
10:30 a.m. - Fuzz and Stuffing Puppets.

11:10 a.m. - Jean Wallace Dance Studio.

12:10 p.m. - Chesapeake Bay Cloggers.

13th Street Stage:
10:30 a.m. - Wappadooodle Puppets.

11:20 p.m. - Mandu the Magician.

12:10 p.m. - Wappadooodle Puppets.

18th Street Stage:
10:30 a.m. - Virginia Beach Guitar Band.

11:20 a.m. - Pungo Ridge Band.

12:10 p.m. - The Dizzies.

The youth day shoreline activities and entertainment are coordinated by the Youth Activities Unit of the Virginia Beach Parks and Recreation Department. For more information, call 471-5884.

What begins looking like a bunch of hot dogs may very well end up as a jet airplane or a sea turtle by the time it is completely constructed.

Catamaran Race Set For 28th

The Four Sails Neptune Catamaran Race is set for Saturday, Sept. 28 at 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"The Four Sails Neptune Catamaran Race is another excellent addition to the fantastic roster of activities that the Neptune Festival offers," said Joe Gianscoli, this year's chairman.

"The dozens of colorful sails gliding through the ocean off Virginia Beach will be a dazzling sight for the thousands of Ne-

The race will begin from 24th Street, sailing along a triangular course south around a marker near 5th Street, then sailing northeast around a marker near 5th Street, then northwest around a marker off 40th Street. The race will entail five laps total.

The entry fee is $10 and registration can be made the day of the event. For more information contact Steve House at 583-7709.

Ethnic Groups To Display Native Dress

Neptune Festival Heritage Day is Sunday, Sept. 29 from noon to 6:30 p.m., at the Norwegian Lady Park and on the boardwalk from 25th Street to 27th Street.

"We expect to have approximately 20 different ethnic groups participating. Each will have a booth or tent set up to provide ethnic food, native costume and celebration customs" said Joe Gianscoli, this year's festival chairman.

Heritage Day is free and open to the public, but ethnic food prices are set by individual vendors.

There are more than 150 participants who perform throughout the day in full native costume.

Banana Split To Be Center Of Attention At Street Fair

The MCI Telecommunications Street Fair is set for Sunday, Sept. 29 from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Atlantic Avenue between 19th and 25th Streets.

"This year, the Street Fair will feature local high school teams competing in olympic-style games of fun and skill," said Joe Gianscoli, this year's chairman.

The public is invited to join in the fun, helping to build Hampton Roads longest banana split (the record is 216 feet - the goal is 300 feet).

"As the festival continues to expand and grow in popularity, we've needed to look for more room to host the events. With the beautification program completed in this area, the Street Fair has become one of the best new festival additions."

The Olympic Street Fair is free and open to the public. For more information call 498-0215.

In past years, water lovers throughout the region visited Virginia Beach to display their paddlesurfing abilities to the festival crowd.

Dave Dravecky To Be Guest Speaker At Prayer Breakfast

The C&P Telephone prayer breakfast will be held from 7:15 to 9 a.m., on Tuesday, Sept. 24 at the Founders Inn and Conference Center.

"The prayer breakfast will be highlighted by a speech from Dave Dravecky, a former San Francisco Giant and San Diego Padre's pitcher," announced Joe Gianscoli, this year's festival chairman. "This breakfast has become a popular festival tradition and traces its beginning to the first Neptune Festival. We expect more than 500 people to attend."

Tickets for the event, sponsored by C&P Telephone, are $10 per person or $100 for a table of 10. Tickets may be obtained by calling 498-0215.

Sandman Triathalon Set For Sept. 15

The Neptune Festival Sandman Triathlon is set for Sunday, Sept. 15, beginning at 8 a.m. on 31st Street and Atlantic Avenue.

"We had only 500 slots for the event in its ninth year, and has become known along the entire seaboard as a class competition."

The event includes an open-ocean swim of 2K (1.24 miles), a 22-mile bicycle ride and a 10K (6.2 mile) run. Traffic along Shore Drive and Atlantic Avenue will be partially closed to accommodate the participants.

This event is sponsored in part by Ferguson Enterprises, Shell Division.

WHAT A DIFFERENCE CARING MAKES.

When the idea of Smith & Williams Funeral Home was conceived the decision was made that it would be "established for those who care." We begin our 25th year still operating with this as our standard.

Through personal caring and thoughtfulness we feel we have learned to respond to the needs of our community, Hampton Roads.

Singer/entertainer Michael Danso, who drew a sell-out crowd during his first performance in Virginia Beach two years ago, makes a return engagement on Sunday, Feb. 23. Danso dazzled his audiences in the Pavilion Center last year and was immediately booked for a return engagement. His demand as an artist increases with each performance here. He will be featuring music of Cole Porter.

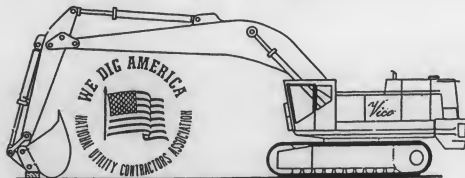

In what has become a well-anticipated event, the National Piano Competition winner will headline a concert on Sunday, March 22. The winner is chosen from among the nation's best 18- to 32-year-olds. This year's concerto is the Tchaikovsky Bb Minor. The concert series has featured many artists who are rapidly making names for themselves.

The scheduled season concludes Sunday, April 26 with a return engagement by renowned classical pianist William Wolfram. This appearance marks Wolfram's fourth with the Orchestra Virginia Beach. He will perform the Liszt piano concerto #1.

All concerts are scheduled in the Virginia Beach Pavilion with performances at 2:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. Season subscriptions ranging in price from $36 to $86 and may be purchased by calling Orchestra Virginia Beach, 428-7677. 100-Acre Outdoor Religious Facility Oked In Indian River

"Prayer Mountain" Would Hold 4,500 People

By Lee Cahill
City Council reporter

Rock Ministries, Inc. has received a conditional use permit from City Council to construct outdoor recreational facilities on a 100-acre site off Indian River Road, south of the Green Line.

The use permit, granted recently carries 10 conditions, among which are a three-year limit on the permit, a limitation on events for more than 500 people to four times a year, and sufficient parking areas.

The site, west of West Neck Road, has been the subject of other planning applications over the years. A change in zoning from agriculture and to hotel and business zoning, and a conditional use permit to build university housing were denied in 1983; a conditional use permit for an outdoor amphitheater was withdrawn in 1985; a conditional use permit for recreational facilities - ball fields, tennis courts and a concession stand was granted in 1984 and a conditional use permit for a TV transmitter station was granted in 1986.

The facility will consist of a children's play area, a picnic pavilion, four horseshoe pits, three volleyball courts, three tennis courts, three basketball courts and four baseball fields. Also included will be ten camp sites, a concession/announcer's building, a stage fronting on the canal, and a grassed jogging/walking path.

A "prayer mountain" in the plans will be designed to accommodate 4,500 people.

According to the applicant, major outings will be scheduled three or four times a year, involving 4,000 people each - one lasting for one week and the others for weekends.

20 To 30 Graves, Markers Vandalized

Virginia Beach police recently responded to a report of numerous grave markers being overturned and damaged at the London Bridge Baptist Church cemetery in the 2400 block of Potters Road.

Between 20 and 30 grave markers had been overturned and damaged and one grave had been partially dug into. The church has estimated the damage to be approximately $10,000.

Police responded to a private burial site near the dead end of Lake Havasu Court to a report of an open grave. Responding officers found a grave with the cement covering broken open. It appears as though the grave has been insecure for some time. There are signs of the remains having been disturbed.

The identity of the remains in each of these cases will be withheld until police are able to determine if there are relatives to be notified and notifications can be made.

There are no signs at either case of any occult activity.

Anyone with information as to who may be responsible for either of these cases is asked to call Crime Solvers at 427-0000.

Woman Dies In Pungo Boating Mishap

A boating accident recently occurred about 4:30 p.m. in the inter-coastal Waterway approximately 1-mile south of the Pungo Ferry Bridge.

Both boaters were pulling skiers at the time of the accident and it appears that both operators were at least somewhat inattentive to the operation of their boats.

The boats involved were a 16' Sea Ray outboard operated by Eric

L. Scott, 27, of the 3800 block of Sweetbriar Court in Virginia Beach.

There were three other passengers plus a skier in the Sea Ray. A passenger riding in the bow of the boat was struck by the second boat as it went over the bow of the Sea Ray. That passenger was taken to the beach at Pungo Ferry where rescue units attempted to revive the victim without success, the victim was

Will Virginia miss Wilder?

"Knock, knock."
"Who's there?"
"Doug Wilder."

"Doug Wilder? What do you mean? This is the 1992 presidential campaign. You don't belong here. You are just a freshman governor with only 20 months in office. You belong in Richmond doing what those people elected you to do — to run things in Virginia — and from what we hear, they want some results."

"Yeah, I know, but this is a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity and I'm going to take it. Remember the line from the old Ricky Nelson song, that you can't please everyone so you have to please yourself? That's what I am doing."

So Governor L. Douglas Wilder, 60, begins his national adventure. Well, why not, if it pleases him. Right now, the field of contenders for the Democratic nomination is shaky and shallow. Wilder has as much political savvy as any of them. Just like the others, he can promise to reduce government spending, raise no new taxes and cut back on government bureaucracy.

But what about the Old Dominion? As Wilder hustles from state to state looking for money and votes, who will handle the governor's duties in Richmond?

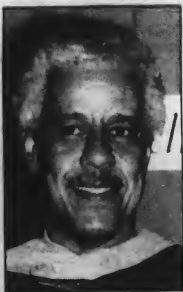

Wilder says he will. He says he can "campaign two days a week and on weekends and in this telephonic age" still run Virginia. Many Virginians are not convinced. Political insiders believe the man on the other end of the telephone will be chief of staff Jay Shropshire and that the state's business will be managed by him. The governor's right-hand man is viewed by his critics as vengeful, insecure and paranoid. However, some see Shropshire's 14 years as clerk of the state Senate as good training for the task ahead. We will find out.

In these difficult times, it would be helpful to have a full-time governor at the controls, not a career bureaucrat who has not been elected to anything. But others say Virginia won't suffer because Governor Wilder hasn't been here much anyway and how can you miss something you've never had. Knock, knock. —H.B.

Be Careful!

I don't write from sweet inspiration. I write from bitter cynicism. I don't write what I think people want to read. I write what I know and think. That's why, some people may take some words too seriously. Too bad. They're only words. I do agree, however, that words are the most powerful weapons on earth. Words cause war, words cause peace, words cause love, words cause hate. In almost every situation known to mankind, words preface and/or followed all significant action. Action just reinforces the words.

So, no one get upset with me for observing that Governor L. Douglas Wilder, for at least the next five years, is a prime assassination candidate. Much has already been written and said about his historic quest for the White House. Why repeat it? In this case, observations, comments, opinions and perspectives, serious or satiric, are really more important than the actual news event.

Wilder

Private Revolution

That's why, even though no one likes even raising the spectre, it must be noted that more likely than not, based on America's increasingly violent society, that someone will try to kill Wilder. Remember Martin Luther King, Jr.? John and Bobby Kennedy? Attempts on Reagan and George Wallace? Wilder has much going for him. So much, in fact, that a book by Margaret Edds, "Claiming the Dream," was written about him. The ultimate press release. A grandson of slaves, a decorated military veteran, a shrewd lawyer and politician, a ladies' man. But, Wilder will never be elected president. Maybe someday, some black, maybe Wilder, may be elected vice president. And someday, 50 or 100 years from now, there will be a black president. To hear some experts, minority groups in the U.S. are increasing to the point that they will someday take over the "white, male" dominated society as most people know it. A minority president is inevitable.

Wilder knows there will be death threats. He knows that he is placing his and his family's lives in danger. But a true man cannot cower.

But Wilder knows the hills and obstacles that confront him. Yet, he chooses to forge ahead undaunted. Give 'em hell, Doug. If nothing else, you will set a fine example for people around the world.

But what I fear, and I pray I'm wrong, is that some ultra-extreme-right-winger with a Redneck chip on his shoulder will come along and make him a martyr. Or maybe a mental defective will take a shot. Who knows? Martyrdom is necessary — to die for a cause — but it's said when it happens. Wilder has been around the amusement park a couple of times, and now he doesn't want off the political roller coaster. If he doesn't win a national spot, you can always come back to Virginia and run a close, nasty race in 1994 for U.S. Senator's Charles Robb's seat. Or seek national office again in 1996.

Wilder knows there will be death threats. He knows that he is placing his and his family's lives in danger. But a true man cannot cower. A man must do what he has to do, including wearing a bullet-proof vest. We were all made differently. Even if we don't always understand, we all have a reason for being, a purpose for living. Some men's causes are just more noble than others'.

Home Fitness Dilemma

Dear Jack:

I am a former Virginia Beach resident who still gets my weekly subscription to The Virginia Beach Sun. I know that being in shape and exercising are very important factors in life. But since my move, I have had no access to any equipment that would keep me in shape; I'm not a member of any local health club; and I am forced to try and keep in shape on my own.

Unfortunately, these days my primary exercise is gained by walking, combined with an occasional sit-up or two before I go to bed at night. I would like to know the best home exercise regimen to use to keep in shape. I enjoy your column and know that you want to help those of us who can't afford to join a health club or buy fancy weightlifting equipment.

Wareing

Janet L. Tucker
Portsmouth, Va.

Dear Janet:

I am really glad to hear that you appreciate the need to maintain a healthy level of fitness, and that you want to start a consistent exercise program. However, prescribing an effective exercise program for somebody to do at home would be extremely difficult for several reasons.

Fitness Lifestyles

By Jack Wareing, owner, Wareing's Gym, Virginia Beach

Exercise and the way in which people react to it is very individualistic. Your program should be based, on among other things, your present level of fitness, personal objectives and your body structure. Everybody reacts very differently to different types of exercise; what is effective for one person may not only be ineffective for another, but could potentially be dangerous and debilitating. You mentioned that you have been walking, and by all means keep it up. Even if you never join a health club or purchase any exercise equipment this will be much improvement over no exercise at all.

This brings up the dilemma of whether to workout at home or join a health club or gym. Generally speaking, although some individuals can consistently adhere to a home fitness program and actually do quite well at it, there are countless others who have purchased expensive exercise equipment which has now turned into nothing more than high-priced dust collectors. For proof of this just pick-up the classifieds or Trading Post and you'll find just about a page of "hardly used" exercise equipment.

Granted, there are certain advantages to working out at home, such as plenty of privacy if you happen to feel uneasy about exercising with other people. Also, there is the time factor. You don't waste any time traveling from your home to the gym and back, and you never have to wait for anyone to finish using a piece of equipment. However, the main problem is staying motivated, and this can be very difficult when you try to stay at it alone. You are not only limited at home by your equipment, but more importantly, by your accessibility to ongoing knowledge and information that a well-trained fitness staff will provide. Moreover, the spirit and camaraderie of being around other people with similar interests and goals is very uplifting.

As far as the cost of joining a health club or gym, I think you will find that the monthly fee of most clubs is less than you are probably paying for your cable TV bill, and I feel personally if you could have one or the other I would think that a fitness club membership would have a more positive effect on you than "Mr. Ed" reruns.

If you have any questions or comments regarding fitness or nutrition feel free to drop me a line. I'll look forward to hearing from you and helping in any way I can. Please write to: Jack Wareing, c/o Wareing's Gym, 700 19th Street, Va. Beach, Va., 23451.

Letters To The Editor

Mr. Editor: I have read the article in the September 14, 1991 issue of The Virginia Beach Sun, titled "Police Say Thanks; Dedication Oct. 15".

Police Say Thanks; Dedication Oct. 15

Editor:

The Virginia Beach Police Department would like to say a special thank you to the 769 residents of Virginia Beach who made donations to the National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial Fund.

The National Law Enforcement Officers Memorial, bearing the names of those officers who lost their lives in the line of duty, will be dedicated on October 15, 1991. The monument will be located in Judiciary Square in Washington, D.C. and will stand as a tribute to all law enforcement officers.

Government Should Spend On Education

Editor:

Millions of people are unemployed. The solution is to create more jobs. To do this the federal government needs to spend some money.

The money should be spent on education, but in a special way. We need to spend it only on those students that are studying toward becoming entrepreneurs, because these people will create more jobs. I suggest a lump sum bonus for entrepreneur graduates. They can use this money to create jobs.

The Mayor's Report

Virginia Beach Mayor
Meyera Oberndorf

It can be said that Virginia Beach volunteers are public relations agents and goodwill ambassadors for the city. Through their efforts, the city realizes over $8 million annually in services provided solely by volunteers. This is a pretty amazing statistic that demonstrates the commitment of these special individuals. Without their support, many programs that provide both enjoyment and valuable services to our citizens would not be possible.

Volunteers, too, derive many benefits from working within the city system. They have the opportunity to meet new people, help to initiate new programs and see the governmental process at work. Volunteers supplement and complement the work force. Last year, 3,761 volunteers performed the equivalent of 1,000,000 hours' worth of free services.

The Virginia Beach Volunteer Council assists in expanding volunteer services in city agencies and departments. Consisting of representatives from both staff and the volunteer force, the council promotes volunteerism and provides consultation and training to volunteers and employees alike. The council is also responsible for tracking volunteer participation and for providing recognition for the vital contribution of volunteers.

Volunteer opportunities are available in virtually every city department and utilize an endless array of talents. Television production, museum docents, data processing, public safety, performing art and crisis counseling are only a few of the volunteer opportunities available.

And many of the individuals who are associated with the volunteer programs are as interesting as the activities in which they participate. Henry DeShields, for example, leads the performing arts unit of the Parks and Recreation Department. DeShields is an energetic individual whose infectious spirit rubs off on all of those with whom he works. He feels that the volunteers he recruits are also a special breed. Performing arts' volunteers assist in many aspects of the program, such as ushering, building sets and working backstage.

The Virginia Marine Science Museum, a major educational facility, also relies heavily on volunteers. With a staff of only 25 full-time and 21 part-time employees, volunteers are a crucial part of operating the museum.

Annabel Rimmer, VMSM's volunteer administrator, notes that "the museum is always looking for people willing to give time and who are serious and will treat the job as if it were a paying position."

Bob Crosswhite spends his volunteer hours with the Virginia Beach Detox facility, working in the kitchen or transporting clients, sometimes as far away as The Medical College of Virginia in Richmond. During these trips his wife, Toni, joins him so that he will not have to travel alone. Crosswhite says that he enjoys volunteering because of the flexible hours and the sense of accomplishment he derives.

Volunteer opportunities are available in virtually every city office . . . last year, 3,761 volunteers performed the equivalent of 1,000,000 hours' worth of free services.

Volunteers are a crucial element in the successful day-to-day operation of our municipal government and the scope of services that we are able to provide. If you would like further information on the Virginia Beach Department Volunteer experience, call 427-4157.

Special thanks to Tracy Bullock, an intern and volunteer for the Virginia Beach Public Information Office, for providing information for this article.

By Lillian Youell,
Virginia Beach Constitution
Celebration Commission
Consultant

The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution (NSDAR) promoted the idea of devoting an entire week, beginning on Sept. 17, as a time to study the Constitution, to review the events that led to its framing, and consider the means of preserving it.

At the request of the NSDAR in 1955, a joint resolution by Congress authorized the president to issue an annual proclamation designating the week of September 17 through 23 as "Constitution Week." Since 1991 is the bicentennial year of the ratification of the first ten amendments to the Constitution, the focus this year is the Bill of Rights.

Former Chief Justice Warren Burger, now chairman of the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution Commission, reminds his fellow Americans that

Constitution Week, 1991

"Constitution Week is an observance not only of our freedoms, but of our responsibilities as citizens as well. It is a legacy representing not only the respect we all share for our governing document, but also our commitment to educate all citizens, especially our youth - the leaders of tomorrow - concerning its history and principles."

We the People of Virginia can take special pride in the pivotal role of our state, not only in the drafting of the Constitution, but in the drafting of those first amendments. Virginia's Declaration of Rights, approved by the General Assembly in 1776, served as the model for other states and later for the federal Bill of Rights.

Then, Virginia became the key state to ratify on December 15, 1791, making those amendments a part of the Constitution. That day is now commemorated as "Bill of Rights Day."

Ratification has been called "a democratic fail safe." Article V of the Constitution, the amending clause, requires that three-fourths of the states ratify any amendment before it becomes a part of the Constitution. When there were only thirteen states, nine states were required to ratify the Constitution. But when Vermont became the 14th state in 1791, eleven states had to approve any amendment.

Virginia became that crucial 11th state. After her action, three of the original thirteen states did not bother to ratify the Bill of Rights! It was not until the 150th anniversary of its submission to the states that this omission was noted and corrected. The legislatures of Connecticut, Georgia and Massachusetts officially approved those ten amendments in 1939.

In case you have forgotten your civics lessons, you may wonder when the other states ratified. States entering the Union after 1791 formally accept the Constitution with its amendments when admitted. A bill of statehood is the only kind of bill that Congress cannot repeal.

Democracy depends on a educated citizenry. We citizens have an obligation to keep informed. As former broadcast journalist Walter Cronkite writes, "A democracy ceases to be a democracy if its citizens do not participate in its governance. To participate intelligently, they must know what their government has done, is doing and plans to do in their name. Whenever any hindrance, no matter what its name, is placed in the way of this information, a democracy is weakened, and its future endangered."

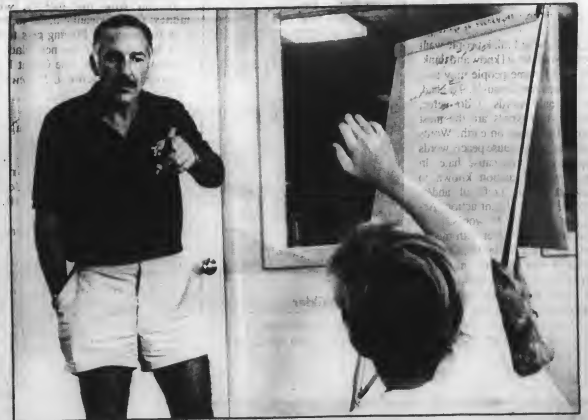

Virginia became the crucial 11th state. After her action, three of the original thirteen states did not bother to ratify the Bill of Rights . . . until the 150th anniversary of its submission.

This Thursday, Sept. 19, the city's Constitution Celebration Commission is co-sponsoring with Virginia Wesleyan College an observance of Constitution Week.

The public is invited to hear Dr. Timothy G. O'Rourke, executive director of the Virginia Commission on the Bicentennial of the U.S. Constitution, speak on "The Bill of Rights and Beyond" at 11 a.m. in the Hofheimer Theater on the college campus.

Pendleton Child Service Center Helps Special Students Succeed

By Debbie Weyman
Special To The Virginia Beach Sun

A pin-up in a classroom at the Pendleton Child Service Center in Virginia Beach reads:

"Class rules! Be Prepared. Be On Time. No Gum or Candy. No Put Downs. Ask for Help. Have A Great Day!" and students diagnosed with behavioral problems study busily from desk to desk. There are some outbreaks but they are few and far between.

Education is one of many facets of the service that the Pendleton center provides. In varying program capacities, Pendleton serves families with children ages 5 to 12 who have behavior and learning problems that are likely to result in delinquent behaviors during adolescence.

"I think there is a tremendous need in the community for parents to feel that they are supported," said Sue Wilson, supervisor of outclient services at Pendleton. "This community is very transient; there is not a lot of extended family to provide some of those basic support services."

Pendleton opened its doors in 1973 to combat an increase in local juvenile delinquency. It has now been serving children and their families of Virginia Beach and Chesapeake for 18 years. With funding coming from the states of Virginia and the two cities, families can benefit who would not normally be able to afford such an opportunity.

"We do not charge for our services," stated Norris Phillips, the center's executive director, "from a 12- to 16-week stay in our residential program, to outreach community support service, or follow-up services, we would not charge any one, regardless."

Phillips said that if there were a fee involved, many of their families would not have been able to benefit from the agency.

Pendleton aids over 300 families a year and has a success rate of 75 percent with the families with which they work. It operates from a rented 3 1/2 acres on the Camp Pendleton Military Base, with a facility that can serve a total of 24 children a day and sleep up to 20.

Although more than two-thirds of their families are served on an outpatient basis, Pendleton offers a three- to four-month residential program for children who need more extensive treatment. Pendleton commits to serving the needs of the entire family rather than focusing only on the individual child.

"It is all for the family here, everything that they do here is to get us together," said Jeri Centric, whose daughter Amanda, 12, has been diagnosed with ADHD. "Working with (just) the child is not solving the problem because we all are part of the problem."

Centric stated that she and her husband have seen a 90 percent change for the better in the behavior of their daughter, who has gone through the residential program at Pendleton.

After a child leaves residential or the day treatment program, services from Pendleton do not stop there. Follow-up programs exist that provide continuing support.

"The reality is that things are never going to always go okay," said Sue Wilson. "That is true with every family. What is important is to know that the family can deal with whatever problem that arises."

When children enter into a residential or day program at Pendleton, they take their school books with them. Educators at Pendleton work with their original teachers so that they are at the same place as their classmates when they return.

"Sometimes they are (even) a little ahead," said Wilson. "Here, there are 10 children in a classroom. Attention is more individualized than a normal classroom filled with 20 to 28 students."

Pendleton special education teacher Susan Kaiser stated that children with behavioral problems need the kind of set-up and learning approach that the organization offers.

"When these kids have problems in school, that is all they hear about for so long, 'he is unmanageable, he blurs out, he won't sit still.' Maybe nobody has ever said, 'I really like the way you made a B' on this paper,' it makes a big difference. I think that a lot of these kids have never heard positive remarks in the classrooms."

With more than 5,000 cases served since it began operating, Pendleton has made a definite improvement in the cities of Virginia Beach and Chesapeake, which are concerned about the future of its young people, said Wilson.

"It helps, it really helps," Centric said. "A lot of parents are so frustrated and just don't know where to turn. Rather than go through all the efforts and throw your hands up in the air, take another step further and seek something else that might help."

New Textbooks, Honors, Awards, PTA Meetings

New textbooks for a variety of disciplines in Virginia Beach public schools are under consideration for the school year beginning September 1992.

The Department of Instruction and Curriculum Development is recommending the adoption and use of new textbooks for secondary school courses in Art I and Environmental Science and for elementary school subjects of General Music (grades 1-5) and Social Studies (grades 1-8).

The textbooks will be on display for public review and comment from Sept. 16 through Oct. 15 in all city public libraries and the School Administration Building at the Princess Anne Municipal Center.

The Virginia Beach School Board will consider adoption of the textbooks at its Oct. 15 meeting.

Awards And Recognitions

Help for new teachers

Rookie teachers in the Virginia Beach public schools will have expert help negotiating their first year in the classroom. The division's Office of Professional Development has received a $10,000 grant from the Virginia Department of Education to develop and implement a teacher mentor program for beginning teachers.

The mentor program, which will pair a first-time teacher with an experienced teacher, will be designed to facilitate the successful entry of beginning teachers into the teaching profession. The program will address the major needs in their critical first year of teaching and provide professional growth experience for the experienced mentor teachers.

"A successful first year often marks a successful teaching career," said professional development specialist Tamara Bowyer. "The mentor program will help provide a solid foundation for new teachers and a validation for experienced teachers. Teachers have always helped other teachers; this program will refine that process. Ultimately, the mentors, the new teachers, and their students will benefit."

Superintendent Speaks

Virginia Beach public schools superintendent Sidney L. Faucette will be the featured speaker at the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce-Virginia Beach "Beach Briefs" breakfast on Sept. 23. The meeting begins at 7:45 a.m. at the Holiday Inn Executive Center on Greenwich Road and costs $10. For reservations, call Lisa Hanks by Friday, Sept. 20 at the HRCC-VB office, 490-1221.

Sept. 22 - Virginia Beach public schools planetarium public program, "Celestial Cycles," Plaza Junior High, 7 p.m. The program is free, but reservations are requested. Call 431-4067 Monday through Friday.

JOHN 3:
 16 For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.
 17 For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved.

18 He that believeth on him is not condemned; but he that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God.

Neptune Festival Continues This Weekend

For some Neptune Festival participants, surfing is the name of the game. Young wave riders get to demonstrate their well-honed skills to an enthusiastic audience.

The 11th annual Neptune Surfing Classic, held this past weekend at 14th Street, kicked up the surfing at the Neptune Festival.

This Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 28 and 29, the Classic will continue at 14th Street at the Oceanfront, beginning at 8 a.m. both days and ending at 6 p.m.

This is just one of many events taking place during the 18th annual Virginia Beach Neptune Festival, which runs through Sunday, Sept. 29 on the boardwalk. The City of Virginia Beach and Virginia Beach Events Unlimited are sponsoring the festival.

What's Happening In Virginia Beach

"Moving Wall" Replica Coming To Trashmore

The "Moving Wall," a replica of the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C., will travel to Mt. Trashmore Park in Virginia Beach on Thursday, Oct. 3 and remain on display through Oct. 9.

The display area in the parking lot off Edwin Drive will be open 24 hours per day.

There is no admission charge. An opening ceremony will be held on Saturday, Oct. 5 at 11 a.m.

Mayor Meyera E. Oberdorff, Congressman Owen B. Pickett, former POW, John Fellows, and Jack Clark, the national vice-president of the Vietnam Veterans of America will participate in the ceremony.

A POW-MIA ceremony will be held on Tuesday, Oct. 8 at 6 p.m. Military and veterans groups are invited to coordinate their own ceremonies.

The Vietnam Veterans' Memorial in Washington, D.C. was conceived by Vietnam veteran Jan Scruggs as a tribute to those who served in Vietnam. The mobile version was conceived by John Devitt, a Vietnam veteran in California, who wanted to construct a replica to be displayed on the west coast. When explaining his project to several other Vietnam veterans, they asked if it would be portable. Devitt decided on the spot that it would.

The "Moving Wall" is 252.83 feet in length and 6 feet in height at the vertex, compared to the memorial in Washington which is 493.83 feet in length and 10.2 feet in height. Both walls contain the names of soldiers who died in the war and both were paid for with contributions from the public. The mobile wall is touring 100 American cities.

The "Moving Wall" is being sponsored by the city of Virginia Beach, the Vietnam Veterans of America Chapter #48, the Hampton Roads Chamber of Commerce, Beach Events Unlimited, WTKR Channel 3 and WNOR FM 99.

For additional information or to schedule an event, contact Joann Harkins or Helen Taylor at 498-2541.

The Virginia Beach Polo Association, 4-H Clubs, and the University of Virginia Polo Team is sponsoring a polo match on Saturday, Sept. 28, at 3 p.m. at the Alpha Omega Farm, 2685 West Landing Road.

The 4-H Equi-Kids Therapeutic Horseback Riding Club members will present a special program during the half-time break.

Proceeds will benefit the Virginia Beach 4-H Clubs, Virginia Beach Polo Club and the University of Virginia Scholarship Program. For ticket and patrons' party information, contact the Virginia Beach 4-H office at 427-4617 or Barbara Moore at 627-1980/children under 12 are admitted free.

Chesapeake Bay Wine Classic On Oct. 19, 20

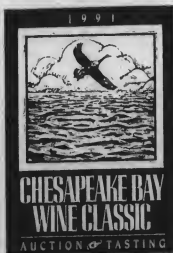

The first Chesapeake Bay Wine Classic will be held on Saturday and Sunday, Oct. 19 and 20 at Bayville Farms.

The first day will be an limited-seating auction, with Sunday open to the general public for wine sample tasting.

Tickets for Saturday are $75 per person, with reservations limited to 300.

One of Christie's expert wine auctioneers, Ursula Hermanski of the Beverly Hills office, will preside. Tasting of most wines offered for sale will be available as well as other suitable refreshments.

The Sunday affair will be held at the Virginia Beach Center for the Arts from 2 to 5 p.m. Experts will present a free series of seminars on wine, with the price of admission, which also includes hors d'oeuvres. Tickets are $20 per person.

Organizers expect more than 200 different wines will be offered at the classic.

Net proceeds are being donated to WHRO and WHRV, the public television and radio stations serving Hampton Roads.

Advance tickets for either day may be purchased by calling WHRO at 489-9476.

Fabric Artists On Display At Ascension

The Church of the Ascension's Commons Gallery is featuring through Nov. 3 the works of local fabric artists, Patricia Daley, Virginia Wright and Ellie Ryan.

The gallery, located at 4853 Princess Anne Road, is open to the public Monday through Saturday, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

Admission is free. The exhibition was organized and presented by Artists at Work: Gallery and Studios.

Call 425-6671 or 495-7662 for more information.

Linkhorn Park Garden Club Meets On Oct. 4

The Linkhorn Park Garden Club will meet Friday, Oct. 4 at 11 a.m. at the Princess Anne County Club. Mrs. April Miller will present a program on Southern plantation homes.

Members are asked to bring arrangements of autumn flowers or Halloween arrangements, and horticulture specimens of chrysanthemums, roses or other fall flowers.

The club recently held its eighth annual bridge party. Proceeds from the event will be used for the beautification of the community. Awards to club members were presented at the party. Grace Eason was the winner of the "Bridge Marathon" and Evelyn Potter, second. Virginia Meredith won the club's prize for flower arrangements, and Phyllis Elver for horticulture.

The club will first place in the HANDS Project at the Virginia Beach Council of Garden Clubs' Annual Awards Luncheon.

The Bridge Marathon will begin in October and will continue through May 1992.

Proposed Budget Reflects Economy's Changing Condition

Watts Makes Final Budget Presentation; It Has Some "Firsts"

By Lee Cahill
City Council reporter

It was the last Capital Improvement Budget City Manager Aubrey V. Watts, Jr. would be presenting to City Council - he retires Oct. 1 - but it contained a number of firsts.

It is the first time in recent memory, he said, that he is unable to recommend the full construction program proposed by the School Board.

It is the first time he is not recommending appropriation of the full limit of regular charter bonds.

It is the first time the capital spending recommended is less than the previous year.

Watts selected as a theme, "a prudent pause," meaning that it is time to stop the accelerated spending of one of the fastest growing cities in the nation to reassess priorities in a changing economic atmosphere. To some, such as the school system, the "pause" seems more like a "halt." But the staff has listened to its consultants who recommended caution and less borrowing, which affects future generations.

The budget proposed last week calls for a five-year capital program of $1,106,089,058, down from $1,179,345,989 in last year's budget update. The 10-year program amounts to $1,436,741,149. Of that, $505,065, 608 is in utility projects and $930,675,541 in general public improvements. Roads and schools account for 79.4 percent of the general public improvements total.

Dean Block, assistant city manager/budget, said that full funding of the School Board's request would require sacrificing other priorities such as roads. The budget recommends funding approximately 95 percent of the School Board's request of first year funding.

Watts said that the sheer magnitude of the School Board request, $212,813 over the first five years, an increase of $81,793,813 over last year's CIP for the same five-year period, makes addressing the full five-year request impossible.

Block said that the staff was concerned only with the total funding

Seniors, Disabled Win Council Over To Gain New Lynnhaven Housing

Mill Dam Road Building Will Have Up To 124 Single Units

By Lee Cahill
City Council reporter

Senior citizens, the disabled and their advocates raised their voices in support of moderate-priced housing for the people who, one said, usually fall between the cracks.

They outnumbered their opponents, the residents of the neighborhood where the units would be located, by at least three-to-one in a packed council chambers last week. City Council had to decide whether to grant a zoning change and a conditional use permit for a home for the aged, disabled and handicapped on Mill Dam Road in the Lynnhaven Borough.

By a close vote (5-4), council approved the applications for a rezoning from B-2 Community Business District to R-10 Residential District, and a use permit.

Voting against the motion were Councilmen Louis R. Jones and Paul J. Lanteigne and Councilwomen Reba McClanahan and Nancy Parker. Councilman William D. Sessions Jr. abstained and Mayor Meyera Oberdorff was absent.

The discussion took up two hours when it was before the Planning Commission. It went on for more than three hours before the City Council.

Donald Clark, attorney representing the developer, Bancroft Hall Corporation, said that the company was owned by the Waitzer family (Richard M., president and Edwin S. and Scott D. vice presidents) and had built a number of similar projects. All but 25,000 square-feet of the 2,372-acre parcel already had been zoned R-10.

Clark said that the building will be "L" shaped, three stories and have a privacy fence with an access gate leading directly into the Great Neck Village Shopping Center. He said that while the zoning would permit up to 143 units, the applicant would build a maximum of 124 one-bedroom elderly housing units with an elevator, van service, an on-site manager, maintenance and security system and automatic 911 dialing.

The project will have three-foot wide doors to accommodate wheelchairs and grabbars in the bathrooms, as well as smoothed-down carpet for walkers and canes.

Virginia Beach, which has 34,000 citizens who are aged 50 or older, has a shortage of quality housing for the elderly. He said

Manager Recommends Deleting 45, Freezing 100 City Positions

Council Questions How Much Money Would Be Saved; Takes No Action

By Lee Cahill
City Council reporter

City Manager Aubrey V. Watts, Jr. has recommended deleting 45 city positions and continuing a freeze on 100 others.

When council, which took no action on the recommendation, adopted the one-time early retirement program sometime ago, Watts said that to accrue savings, at least half the number of positions from which employees apply for early retirement should be eliminated.

Forty-five employees have applied for early retirement, which would require the elimination of at least 23 positions to realize any savings. However, Watts said that he decided to recommend the deletion of an equal number of positions - 45. The positions suggested for elimination are not necessarily the same positions held by employees leaving on early retirement.

Watts told council last week that the 45 jobs recommended for deletion represent $1.3 million in direct salaries, which does not take into consideration other benefits.

He was unable, however, to give council the actual savings. He said that, first, the savings in eliminating jobs has to be compared with the cost of five years' additional employment until retirement. The credit taking early retirement. The cost of retirement payments.

To be eligible for the program an employee had to be 50 years old and

Holy Cow! Check 'Em Out

Sacred beef? You bet! The Holy Cows wowed 'em at Jamaica Johnny's Sunday night with a night of originals and rearranged covers.

I stopped by J.J.'s at about midnight for a cool beverage and happened to catch the last set of Holy Cows. It was pure happenstance, as I usually go to see someone intentionally; however, this time I got lucky. I wasn't going to stay long, but I really started to enjoy these guys, and didn't leave until they finished at 1:30 in the morning.

It was well worth it, because these fellows put on a great show. Their lead singer, Tom Southern, has a strong voice and an original style, which is hard to find these days. He packs a punch and gets a lot of motion into a confined space. (The stage at the club is really quite small). He performed the covers in his own style, but the original stuff is where Tom shines. Listen for yourself and you'll see what I mean.

Sam Woods did some nice guitar work as well as some lead vocals himself on several tunes. He carried the guitar work extremely well, soloing well without a lot of overplaying, so characteristic of some other players. There were times that it sounded as if more than one guitar was playing.

Harrell

On That Note!

By Saunoy Harrell, Virginia Beach musician and recording artist

Win Anderson's bass playing is nice and solid. He has great tone that is full and punchy, as well as clear, somewhat like a piano bass with clear sustain. Rob Anderson is the new addition to the group in the percussion department, and boys, does he pound it out. He uses a minimac kit with great effect, (some drummers have more drums on stage than a marching band) playing nice, and steady, putting the fills in the right places. He's aggressive, yet doesn't overplay and keeps a solid groove.

Their music is progressive, yet firmly rooted in rock and roll. I hope to see more originals from these boys.

I'm glad I got to hear them perform, and the next time I am off, and if they are playing in town, I plan to catch the whole night, because I definitely was left wanting to hear more.

If you see that the Holy Cows are playing somewhere, you should check them out. Their music is progressive, yet rooted firmly in solid rock and roll. I hope to see more originals from these boys, because I think they have great potential. Holy Cow! Check 'em out

One Picture Worth 1,000 Words

This column is by Chesapeake resident Eric Shaffer, a regular contributor to The Virginia Beach Sun's sister newspaper, The Chesapeake Post.

It has often been said that one picture is worth a thousand words, and if I ever had any doubts, they were dispelled during my last business trip to Europe.

Travel in foreign lands always whets my appetite for news from home. I generally turn to TV to satisfy this need. Even with limited language skills, the TV can present an understandable and digestible amount of news from home.

In the process of watching the news I became very conscious of the number of times President George Bush appeared on camera and how often these pictures of him originated from some vacation site. Clearly the image being projected by the foreign media is that of a U.S. president taking a rather cavalier attitude toward the problems of the world.

Problems the local commentators present with great seriousness and much

Get Enough Protein For Muscle Tone

Dear Jack:

Hey! I am a very small girl (just 5-foot tall, 102 pounds) and I've been on a weightlifting program for about a year at the rec center. It's a good program, and I receive supervision when I need it. I've increased my weights gradually. The trouble is, I really don't think I look more toned now, even though I'm stronger. I can't really see any defined muscles.

Someone suggested to me that maybe it's because I don't eat enough. I eat very lightly to keep trim - cereal for breakfast, salad for lunch and a light dinner, hardly any junk. I probably consume about 1,000 calories a day.

Do you think if I ate more, I could improve my "toned look?" The trouble is I really don't want to gain weight. Do you think my diet could be the cause of my non-muscular look?

By the way, your column is great. Fitness is in and your column shows you're on top of the latest information. You have some really good insights.

Thanks. I hope you'll answer my letter, because I'd love to look a little more fit than I currently do.

Dear Courtney:

Looking at your particular muscle malady from a nutritional standpoint, I would not necessarily say that you need to eat more. However, I would highly recommend that you make an effort to consume more quality protein. During the '80's, it seemed the big nutritional catchword was complex carbohydrates. Breads, pastas and rice become the foods of choice for millions of exercising Americans. Understandably, with so much of the emphasis being placed on running and other aerobic activities, the association with high energy foods such as complex carbs was a natural.

Fitness Lifestyles

By Jack Wareing, owner Wareing's Gym, Virginia Beach

Although the value of protein in the diet has been well known for generations, it's importance somehow faded compared to the energy giving properties of carbohydrates. Now, due partly to the widespread interest by men and women with weighttraining, and their ongoing quest for toned, shapely, and youthful bodies, protein should be generating new appeal.

Protein is a major importance for all individuals, whether they participate in exercise or not. Simply put, protein is essential for growth and maintenance of all body tissue, in particular, muscle tissue. Too little protein will frequently lead to poor muscle tone. Inadequate protein can also contribute to poor resistance to infection, slow recovery from wounds and weakening of the nails, hair and skin. A protein deficiency can really make it difficult to "bounce back" from a hard workout. Another factor to be aware of is that it is not so much the amount of protein you take in, but the type of protein that counts. You could actually be in a protein-starved condition while consuming a fair quantity of protein, if that protein was incomplete or low quality.

Protein is of major importance for all individuals, whether they participate in exercise or not... it is not so much the amount of protein you take in, but the type of protein that counts.

Protein in foods that contain all the essential amino acids is called complete protein. Protein contained in foods that lack, or are low in any of the essential amino acids, is called incomplete protein. Meats and dairy products are complete protein foods. Starches such as pasta, rice, fruits and vegetables are incomplete protein. Although you can get complete protein from incomplete protein foods, you must combine and balance foods to obtain the right proportions of amino acids, and this does not always make for the highest quality of protein. Chicken, fish and beef are excellent examples of high quality protein. Beef and pork should be limited because of a higher fat level. Egg albumen (or egg white) is the highest quality protein known.

How much protein should you try to get? Over the years I've concluded that a good simple guideline is to divide body weight by two and the result will be the approximate number of grams of protein required each day. At the same time, I am keeping an eye on the latest nutritional research to see if new findings alter this formula.

If you have any questions or comments regarding fitness or nutrition feel free to drop me a line. I'll look forward to hearing from you and helping in anyway I can. Please write to: Jack Wareing, c/o Wareing's Gym, 700 19th Street, Va. Beach, VA, 23451.

What Kind Of Music?

This column is by Chesapeake resident Faylis Johnson, a regular contributor to The Virginia Beach Sun's sister newspaper, The Chesapeake Post.

As a small child, I was introduced to a wide menu of musical tastes. While my mother cleaned the house, she listened to many types of music; country/western, popular, waltzes, polka and orchestra-style music. You could say that I was fed a well-balanced diet of rhythm and harmony.

I learned in time to acquire a liking for most of the styles. However, there still remains a type of music that I don't particularly enjoy. While I must admit that most country music is great, there remains one segment that I will never enjoy. That type is the "crying over the spilled milk, I'm singing through my nose" type of stuff. You're probably thinking that if I don't like it, then I don't have to listen to it. That's not exactly how it works in a democratic family decision-making situation.

The Mayor's Report

Virginia Beach Mayor
Meyera Oberndorf

Each fall, our thoughts turn to new beginnings in our city - schools open and thousands of children begin their year of learning, socializing and fun. Our beachfront becomes alive with activities for our everexpanding Neptune Festival. Holidays come quickly - Labor Day, Rosh Hashana, Yom Kippur, Halloween, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Each event or occasion hopefully brings thoughts of family, friends and good times. We may even picture a cozy fireplace keeping us warm against the cold weather outside.

Recent studies reveal that many adults and youths do not understand the United States Constitution, the Bill of Rights, and other laws that affect them. This educational deficiency was noted by the Virginia Trial Lawyers Association in 1975 when it asked wives of lawyers to conduct court tours.

Within two years, the Virginia Beach Court Docent Program (VBCDP) was organized and a few "test" tours were conducted. Congress passed the Law-Related Education Act (Public Law 95-561) the following year and the

Budget

for the School Board and that any adjustments to the school construction program would have to be made by the board.

Roads, the city's other top priority, also required some adjustments. Adjustments were made to some schedules while other projects were deleted or deferred. Good bids, however, have provided a surplus of $5.4 million from prior projects to sustain this year's program and to avoid or postpone the issuance of additional debt.

The $30 million road referendum scheduled for 1992 has been deleted and an allocated charter bond authority and the five-cent road bond tax will make the referendum unnecessary. Also, the city will continue to use the annual $8 million in special road bonds.

Referendums are not the answer to providing more money for projects. Referendum borrowing adds to the city's debt just like any other type of borrowing and the city's goal is to add no new debt.

The $16.8 million Sandbridge sewer project is in the budget starting in the 1993-94 budget year.

While no increase in the tax rates are recommended, the budget proposes an environmental service utility and environmental service fee.

The budget does not include new projects recommended by the Resort Area Advisory Commission, but will continue the original beach enhancement program. However, some of the dedicated revenues will also be used for maintenance.

All off-road bikeway projects have been deleted from the program and the Diamond Springs and General Booth fire stations are indefinitely deferred.

Councilwoman Reba McClanahan, representing Princess Anne Borough, where so much of the growth has been going on, said she was concerned about the loss of funding for the schools and the deferral of the General Booth fire station. McClanahan said that with the kind of growth in the General Booth corridor, one fire station could not meet the needs.

Block said that the future impact on the operating budget has to be considered. A fire station needs 15 more firefighters.

Vice Mayor Robert E. Fentress said that every road should include an area for bikeways. He suggested that the staff look into the system used in North Carolina.

Block said that he would ask Public Works for alternatives and did not think the bikeways issue would have serious financial effect on the budget.

McClanahan added that she thought council had been very much in support of bikeways and the city's bikeway plan. She said that the number of bike riders has increased and the city has not spent much on bikeways in the last several years.

"We can't let it drop," she said. She said that the city should be encouraging developers to have bikeways in their subdivision.

"They don't all have to be along the road; they can be tied into recreation areas."

Block said that the staff is not recommending a school bond referendum because it also impacts the city's cost-cutting policies.

Block said that in the '80s the city was concerned about the borrowing limit - the city is limited by state law as to how much money it can borrow without going to the citizens for approval - "but we don't have that problem anymore."

Council's policy now is not only to limit the debt service but the overall debt. The policy does not apply to utilities because that service is self-supporting.

Housing

the project will provide affordable housing for the moderate- to lower-income people who now must sometimes pay 60 to 70 percent of their income for housing.

The apartments will contain less than 500 square feet of space and will rent for approximately $325 a month, Clark said. He said that it is not a Section 8 (subsidized rent) program. He said that the electric bill would come to $20 to $25 a month per unit.

The developer plans to get his financing through the Virginia Housing Partnership, which will make it possible to get low-interest loans.

Charles Emerson, 83, blind and accompanied by his wife of 52 years, said they sold their home but needed something more affordable.

Madeline Nevala, who is on the SEVAMP board, the Mayor's Committee on the Aging, and a member of AARP, said that "this is something that has to be done."

She said that 70 to 75 of the seniors fall into the category that needs moderate-priced housing.

She said that she has moved into a three-room apartment which is "my castle" and "there are many senior citizens in my position who need this escape."

Les Fenlon, chairman of the Great Neck Association of Civic Leagues, said the association is strongly opposed to the project.

"This is not doing the elderly a favor," he said. "What is aesthetic about looking at graffiti on the back of a shopping center, dumpsters and (listening to) dumping all hours of day and night? I see no need for this. It is not the right location."

He said that apartments all over Virginia Beach are available at rents of $300 to $400 a month.

He asked for deferment so that "we can look more carefully at the need." He said that the project will have only one elevator while the Russell House, with 119 apartments, has two.

Helen Anderson, a nearby resident, said that she thought she could enjoy her home without spot zoning in the neighborhood. "Now a developer in Norfolk wants to come down and destroy my peace and quiet."

Al Spazzulo, another resident, said that the project would violate the city's Comprehensive Plan. The density of 52 units an acre is ludicrous, he said. He said that he was concerned about the future impact on developers with 20 acres across the road still undeveloped. He said there was not enough parking (83 spaces are planned), that a precedent was being set, that there was no green space.

The Rev. Vassie Sevee said that they did not need that in their neighborhood.

"If you allow this," she said, "they're going to want to put other building in the neighborhood."

Jim Thompson said that the Planning Department said that the project would set no precedent, but it does.

Robert Mateszak, speaking from his wheelchair, said that "a garbage can is beautiful as long as I can live independently."

Beth Lavender, an administrator of a subdivision for low-income people said that one catastrophe, "one illness, one bankruptcy, one wife you out and anybody can end up in the same position as the people who need moderate-priced housing."

She said that the elderly/handicapped are good neighbors and would be assets to the neighborhood.

Volunteerism - Helping Others

While your outside activities may slow down, you may wish to become more involved in some indoor activities. We'd like to make you aware of the many opportunities available in your own community.

Fall means new beginnings to many programs at the Virginia Beach Department of Social Services, too. Local families in need of both financial and supportive services begin applying for the Surplus Commodities Food Programs, the Energy Assistance Program (assists with heating costs) and the agency's Holiday Project.

The recession has affected many in our community and as incomes fell, more applications came to our Social Services office for Aid to Dependent Children assistance, food stamps and Medicaid. Assistance from the community is one way in which the social service agency helps families and individuals to meet their needs.

Each of you, individually or as a family, can help by volunteering your time or making donations of materials, toys, food or money for food certificates. Here are some opportunities where you can give your time:

★ Respite caregiver - help teach abused and neglected preschoolers self worth, every Thursday from 9 a.m. to 2 p.m.

★ Play group leader - help fight family violence by working with chil-

This fall, when your family is enjoying the beauty of Virginia Beach, remember, "It is more blessed to give than to receive," and volunteer at your local Social Services office.

Your donations of toys, gifts, food or cash will gladly be accepted to assist with both the Foster Care and the agency-wide Holiday Project.

So, this fall, when your family is enjoying the beauty of Virginia Beach, remember the beauty of those words, "It is more blessed to give than to receive" and volunteer at your local Social Services office. For information call Joy Sullivan at 431-3212.

Political Endorsements

The teachers' endorsement process was thorough, fair and identified beyond a shadow of a doubt, the candidates who will work the hardest with teachers for better schools. All candidates were asked to complete a written questionnaire. Except for Jim Brazier, who refused to participate, every endorsed candidate completed the questionnaire and underwent a strenuous interview with teachers.

The committee attempted to have activists from both political parties on the interview teams. Interview teams then met and discussed each candidate's written responses, interview responses, and campaign organization. The interview team then reported their findings and recommendations to the entire committee. The committee then voted to recommend or not recommend endorsements of a candidate in each race. All contributors were then called to a mass meeting to vote on the recommended endorsements. In order to receive the "teachers' endorsement, a candidate had to have received a two-thirds vote by secret ballot at that meeting.

The following pro-education candidates were endorsed by VBEA-PACE and deserve support by all who are committed to quality schools: In the Senate, Senator Sonny Stallings, (D), District 8; and Senator Mark Earley, (R), District 14.

The committee attempted to have activists from both political parties on the interview teams. Interview teams then met and discussed each candidate's written responses, interview responses, and campaign organization.

Court Docent Tours Begin

VBCDP was already off to a great start. In fact, its "pilot" year, 1978-1979, was so successful that it received the Liberty Bell Award from the Virginia Beach Bar Association, which has supported the program from its inception.

The fourteenth year of court tours in our city will begin Monday, Sept. 30. Two docents will meet the school bus bringing 12th-grade government students for their "Day in Court." Tours will be conducted on Mondays, Tuesdays and Wednesdays through the school year in an effort to teach young people about the law, the legal system, and their rights and responsibilities as citizens.

An alarming trend during the past few years has been the negative attitudes of many young people who see the law as remote and impersonal, a nuisance, or a form of punishment. The National Institute for Citizen Education in the Law (NICEL) points out that "These negative attitudes lead to alienation and apathy, as evidenced by low voter turnout, disrespect, and antisocial behavior that is reflected in the growing problems of crime and drug abuse."

The goal of the VBCDP is to promote legal literacy and thus encourage positive attitudes toward the legal system. After all, the courts are here to help. The entire court system, from the lowest state court to the highest federal court, is geared to search out the truth and resolve conflicts, both civil and criminal.

The students learn about the officers of the court by taking the roles of the bailiff, clerk, lawyers and jurors during a short mock trial at the beginning of their tour. After a visit to traffic court, they observe a trial in progress in circuit court. Following a lunch break, the tour concludes with a visit to the Virginia Beach Correctional Facility. An empty jail cell and the slamming of a steel door end the day in court with a kind of exclamation point!

An alarming trend during the past few years has been the negative attitudes of many young people who see the law as remote and impersonal, a nuisance, or a form of punishment.

Comments from students through the years have convinced Director Melinda Perkins that the VBCDP has made a difference. One student noted that this was the best field trip of his high school years. Another said, "Putting me in a juror's seat helped me understand that I should not judge a person before I have gotten all the facts."

Maintaining our democracy is not easy, but through education individuals can learn to be effective, law-abiding, participating citizens. Thus, education is a task not only for the schools but for all of us.

Virginia Beach Libraries' Special Services Division Receives State Service Award

The Special Services Division of the Virginia Beach Public Library has received the 1991 Community Service Award from the Virginia Association of the Blind, an affiliate of the Old Dominion Council of the Blind.

The division is a sub-regional library for the Library of Congress, National Library Service for the Blind of Physically Handicapped.

Its service area includes southside Hampton Roads, Suffolk, Franklin and Isle of Wight, Accomac, Northampton and Southampton counties.

The award is presented annually to a local organization/person who gives both time and efforts to meet the needs of visually impaired persons.

Akene Wicher, library supervisor, stated that "This is the first time the division has received this honor. The staff is thrilled that their efforts have been noticed."

The purpose of a sub-regional library is to provide the same services to the handicapped that a regular public library furnishes to the non-handicapped resident. Special format books are in large print, Braille, on records, flexible discs and cassette tapes. Machines to use these media are also supplied by the library.

Special Services reaches approximately 2,000 certified handicapped individuals and provides deposit collections of books and equipment for 72 hospitals, schools and nursing homes. The youngest reader is three years old and the oldest is 102. More than 4,500 books circulate each month.

The collection consists of 35,000 recorded and 10,000 large print books. Books not in holdings may be requested through interlibrary loan.

The association is an advocate for rights and services for the blind community in Hampton Roads.

The award was presented at the association's 10th annual meeting, held recently at the Breezy Point Officers Club at the Norfolk Naval Air Station.

Free Guide For Winterizing Boat

With the boating season in Virginia Beach drawing to a close, it's not too early for skippers to begin protecting their vessels from the bitter temperatures and inclement weather that winter is sure to bring, warns the Boat Owners Association of the United States (BOAT/U.S.), one of the nation's largest organizations of recreation boaters.

In most areas, ice- and freeze-related damage is not covered by insurance. But with proper care, costly damage to your boat can be avoided during the difficult months ahead. A handy "Winterizing Notebook" has been produced by the BOAT/U.S. Marine Insurance Damage Avoidance Program to help skippers prepare for the big chill. Some tips from this free guide:

* The more prone an area is to freezing, the more storage ashore is a necessity. Make sure critical areas of the hull - the bulkhead, keel and engine - are supported when the boat is out of the water.

* Use a winter storage cover to protect your boat's gel coat and prevent ice damage. The cover should be properly supported to prevent pooling water.

* If the boat is stored in the water, all through-hulls (seacocks and gate valves), except the ones for the cockpit drains, must be closed or your boat will be on the bottom next spring.

* Winterize the engine to avoid a cracked block in the spring. Top off fuel tanks and plug exhaust ports. If you leave a battery on board to operate a burglar alarm or bilge pump, fill the cells with water and make sure they're fully charged so they don't freeze. Store electronics, valuables and flammable ashore.

* Visit your boat every few weeks, especially after heavy storms or extended cold spells, to make sure lines are secure, chafe guards are in place, bilges are dry, etc.

To receive a free copy of the Winterizing Notebook, write: BOAT/U.S., Department G, 880 South Pickett Street, Alexandria, VA 22304; or call toll free at 1-800-678-6467.

Snyder

VWC Features Pianist Barry Snyder

Virginia Wesleyan College's Familiar Faces Concert Series will present pianist Barry Snyder as the second performer on Saturday, Sept. 28, at 8 p.m. in the college's Edward D. Holheimer Theater.

Tickets for the concert is $5 and may be purchased at the door. Call 455-3200 for more information.

Winner of three prizes at the 1966 Van Cliburn International Piano Competition, Snyder has performed throughout the U.S. and Europe. He recently returned from a six-week concert tour of Australia, Korea and Taiwan and is currently a piano professor at the University of Rochester's Eastman School of Music.

The program for the Snyder recital will include Sonata Fantasy No. 2 in G# Minor, Opus 19, Alexander Scriabin; Variations on

"Come un'agnello," Sergei Prokofiev; Sonata No. 8 in B-flat Major, Opus 84, Sergei Prokofiev; and Sonata No. 1 in C Major, Opus 1, Johannes Brahms.

On a recent trip in the family van, my oldest daughter was sitting in the back. She began station scanning. For some reasons unknown to the intelligent parent, our Ford Aerostar has a second set of channel selectors in the back. These selectors are within easy reach of the children and have at times caused a little heart ache over which channel would be chosen.

In a generous mood, we decided to let her pick which music the family would listen to. She went from one station to the next, from rap to rock, from dentist chair music to "crying in the milk" music. I took a deep breath as she settled on the music with a twang. It seemed that I was outvoted on the score. My husband did a victory dance of sorts. My daughters looked at me and laughed.

It's like the interdenominational marriage. Parents expose their children to more than one type of faith and let the children decide what feels right for them. Our children have been exposed to various musical choices and are certainly allowed to pick and choose their favorites. But it's a shame when the party voted out must endure the disliked music. Fortunately for me, they also like rock and roll, so these ear plugs don't have to stay in my ears all the time.

Now if you'll excuse me for a moment, I think someone has asked me a question. It's difficult to hear when you're wearing earplugs. "I'm sorry, Honey, what did you say?"

fanfare. Lasting impressions are created by AIDS demonstrators presenting their case to a president in fishing gear pulling away from the dock while protestors and, by inference, their cause fades from his sight.

After several days of this I became annoyed with this type of political propaganda, considering it very selective and a very effective use of images for purposes hostile to the president's image. I tried to calm myself by remembering that coverage of Bush by the U.S. media was more balanced, showing him in official as well as leisure settings. But upon my return, I have noticed that the president does indeed appear on camera more often in a leisure setting than an official one.

Like most people, I recognize the need for vacations, and like most people, may one day take one, but in these lean economic times, the image of a president perpetually on vacation is unsettling.

These may be working vacations, but somehow having the president announcing a veto of national health care, or a freeze on federal hiring while holding a golf club or fishing rod is rather disquieting.

The president may not be fiddling while the economy dies, but like Nero while Rome burned, it certainly looks that way.

Doughboy's Hospice Benefit Raised More Than $3,000

By Jonathan Marten
Special To The Virginia Beach Sun

An enthusiastic crowd packed Doughboys in Virginia Beach recently to help raise funds in the first annual Rags and Blues Benefit for Hospice Care Support Services, Inc.

The mostly youngish crowd helped raise over $3,000, according to Doughboy's owner George Kotarides, who spoke eloquently on behalf of Hospice Care and its founder and director, Franne Whitney Nelson, who was busy caring for a patient elsewhere.

Entertainment was supplied by popular area guitarist Gibb Droll and his band, as well as by Lime-Light Productions' On Parole Players who previewed a scene from the play Vanities, which opened at Doughboys the following night. Also featured was an exhibit by contemporary Virginia Beach artists Rabiah Vincent.

"I've done a few fundraisers for them with the Jaycees over the past couple of years," says Kotarides. "I felt this would be a more economic and productive way of doing it."

Hospice Care Support Services Inc. is a non-profit, tax exempt organization which provides free housing, companionship, emotional and spiritual support for the terminally ill.

According to Nelson, "To die loved, comforted, nourished and unafraid is a great achievement for anyone. It is the highest and best that we could wish for those we love."

"Franne has a real gift for what she's doing," Kotarides said. "It could be a very depressing job but she finds a lot of joy in it."

In addition to Doughboys and all the others who participated in the fundraiser, it was the contribution of time and talent by members of the arts community that helped make the evening a success.

"They probably saved our life," says Nelson, "because we were in danger of closing. I'm stunned at the support and commitment. A lot of hard work went into the benefit and we're grateful to everyone who contributed to our effort."

"We all had a lot of fun," Kotarides added, "raised some money and hope to do it again - bigger and better - next year."

Contributions to Hospice Care Support Services, Inc., can be sent to 204 27th Street, Suite D, Virginia Beach, VA 23451.

Red Cross Urges Locals To Give Blood

Virginia Beach residents who want to help area hospital patients are invited to donate blood to the American Red Cross. The Red Cross is currently experiencing a critical shortage in its blood supply.

"Our hospital inventory has dropped to a one-day supply," said Tom Indovina, administrator.

"While much of the nation has been experiencing a severe blood shortage for some time, the Mid-Atlantic region has been holding its own until now. In recent weeks we have experienced a drop in overall collections, meanwhile hospital usage has increased," Indovina said.

"All types of blood are needed to replenish our hospital supply, but there is a critical need for blood types O and B. We must significantly increase collections over the next two weeks to avoid emergency appeal and cancellation of surgeries by our hospitals," he continued.

"It is absolutely essential that the community become aware of the ongoing blood needs in the Tidewater area. An increase in blood donation over the coming weeks will ensure that an adequate supply of blood continues to be available for area hospital patients in need," Indovina said.

The American Red Cross, Mid-Atlantic Regional Blood Services serves the blood needs of 87 counties in central and southeastern Virginia and eastern North Carolina.

Blood donors should be 17 years of age or older, be in good health and weigh at least 110 pounds. Blood donation can be made every eight weeks (56 days). To find out when and where bloodmobiles are being held in this community, call the 24 hour bloodmobile hotline at (804) 446-7281 or contact the local American Red Cross chapter at 428-9081.

Lynnhaven AARP Trip Set For Penns., Dela.

The Lynnhaven AARP Chapter is taking reservations for its November 12 through 15 trip to Pennsylvania and Delaware.

The trip will include visits to the exquisite Longwood, home of Pierre S. DuPont, and Winterthur, home of Henry Francis DuPont. Both these elegant homes have significant and beautiful landscaped gardens with breathtaking displays of fall chrysanthemums.

The trip will feature stops at the Hagley Museum of American Life and the Brandywine Museum with its four famous art galleries. The latter is well known for its Andrew Wyeth exhibit. Also just in time for some major Christmas shopping the group will have the opportunity to shop at the fabulous Vanity Fair Outlets, the Reading Outlet Center and the Manufacturers Outlet Mall in Morgantown.

The itinerary includes a dinner theatre one evening and an old fashioned dinner at the elegant Mendenhall Inn. The cost of the trip is $257 per person, double occupancy, which includes both dinners, all admissions to attractions, three nights lodging, deluxe motor-coach transportation with en route refreshments, a continental breakfast at departure, baggage handling and a professional tour escort.

Reservations should be made as soon as possible with Barbara Eamhardt at 496-3714 or Erna Rice at 428-5480.

Bank Names Standing New Chairman

The Bank of Tidewater Board of Directors has elected Patrick L. Standing as its new chairman.

Standing, a founding director and former mayor of Virginia Beach, succeeds J. Burton Harrison, Jr., his long-time friend and co-founder, who died unexpectedly in August.

"By electing Pat chairman, the board has met the criteria outlined in the management succession plan approved at our annual management review meeting last April," said director and board spokesperson Wayne Lustig. "His 30 years of community leadership and business acumen, coupled with his talent for communicating and building an effective consensus, will keep the bank on course and ensures continuity in its policy."

Standing manages his own investments in Virginia and North Carolina. He was on the Virginia Beach City Council from 1974 to 1982 and served as mayor from 1978 to 1980.

He graduated from the University of Virginia with a bachelor's degree in city planning in 1962. Following a stint as a Norfolk planner, he became a Virginia Beach assistant city planner in 1965, and was named the city's director of planning in 1968.

A former director of Virginia Beach General Hospital, Standing also served as chairman of the Southeast Public Service Authority for four years and on the State of Virginia Local Government Advisory Council.

Cystic Fibrosis Holds Benefit Golf Classic

The Cystic Fibrosis Foundation, Virginia Beach chapter, will present its fourth annual Fore Love Golf Classic on Tuesday, Oct. 22 at the Greenbrier Country Club.

All proceeds will go to the foundation.
